In Hot Pursuit ... of What?

> Perfecting their flag waving technique for the year's first pep rally on September 9 are Kathy McClurg and Jenny Buehl.

What were West Potomac students in pursuit of this year? On September 8, that was an appropriate question. But when the sunglasses came off, and the tans began to fade, answers started appearing. For some, it was good grades; for others, it may have been good friends; but for all, it was a good time. In every corner of the school, there were people studying furiously for their exams, getting all the gossip of the day into the eight minutes between classes, and just smiling. It seemed as though everyone had a purposeful mission, even if it was only to take a break!

Opportunities were endless. There were classes to choose from, clubs to join, sports to play in, and people to meet. The weekends offered even more possibilities. There was always a party or two, a game, a dance, and on the off-chance that none of that was appealing, Mount Vernon Multiplex Cinemas offered twelve movies. Whatever a person wanted to do, the place to begin a search for weekend amusement was McDonald's, where there was surely a someone who knew what was going on. There was always something to do, or, in other words, a goal to pursue.

Take A Chance!

Those who are not afraid of new experiences fit right in at West Potomac. It isn't necessary to perform some amazing feat, just to be flexible! School is a place to try things that seem different, like a new club, or a new sport, because it serves to "broaden our horizons." This year offered plenty of advantages, for example five languages are offered to the exchange students. But it wasn't only in academics that we took chances. The person two rows behind in math might have ended up being a best friend, but someone had to take a chance and start a conversation.

There was always the possibility that a particular interest wasn't represented in school, or that something could be better. When people took a chance and offered suggestions, or used some personal initiative, things changed for the better. In pursuing the "best years of our life", or our high school career, we took a chance to make it just a little memorable.

Her activities are over for the moment, but the eyes of Roxanne Nobrega sees something new to pursue.

The "New" Year

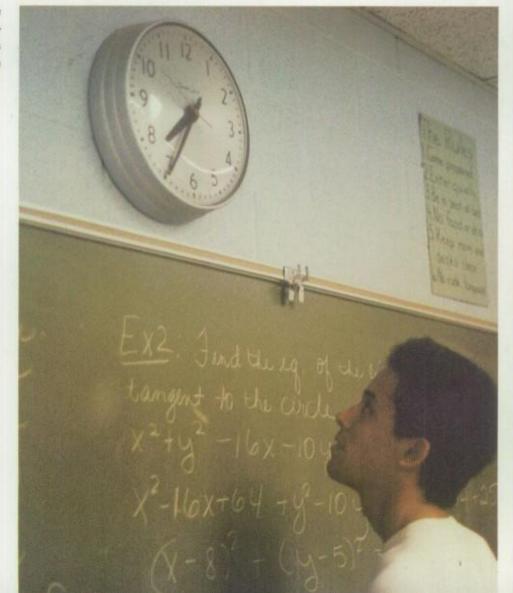

A twist in the guidance department this year was sub-schools. Under the new system Mr. Connolly guides seniors L-Z and in this shot, Tiffany Wilson.

This was the year to be new. Students always like to claim that there is something special, or unique, about a particular year, or about their school. This year West Potomac was no exception. But it was not the clothes we wore or the car we drove (if we got lucky!), or the freshmen. It wasn't the new gym suits, or the new student I.D.'s. It wasn't just the new principal, although he certainly is important, and it couldn't have been the new teachers. So what was it?

What made us unique and different from any other year or school? It was all of that and all of us. Take a glance through an old yearbook. No two people were the same, and they still aren't. And the way a person looked last year, is probably not the way he looks today. Times are constantly changing. And so the junior of last year will be the senior of next year, and the gossip of today will be old news tomorrow. A new and inovative idea now will be a standard of the future. It was the pursuit of something new that challenged us, and kept us changing. It was what made us unique.

BIRTH OF A MASCOT

YOUNG WOLVERINE ADDS TO SPIRIT.

Friday night at a football game during the first weeks of school, we looked down at the cheerleaders and suddenly spotted a brown looking bear. No that's no bear it's our mascot. Questions began to arise!

"Hey what's that down there by the cheerleaders?"

It's a Wolverine, our mascot."

"When did we get one? I'd like to see who's in that thing!"

The person behind that fearless looking Wolverine is none other than Carrie Fultz. Carrie and her best friend Tracey Ray had the idea that the mascot would raise the school spirit. After the approval of Mrs. Porter and Miss Casey (cheerleading sponsors), Carrie and her momoreated the Wolverine. The mascot had no problem fitting in with the cheerleaders.

The Wolverine Mascot helps the cheerleaders motivate the crowd. Most important, it allows another person to participate in school activities, "It's scary at first and you always have to be spirited," says the new mascot, "nevertheless if it's something to help alert students, then you just forget your fears."

Along with the cheerleaders, the mascot cheers the Wolverines toward victory. The mascot at Wepo adds a new dimension to the cheerleaders.

The Wonderful Wolverine Mascot has received rave reviews from all whom have looked upon it. It will surely be around for years and years to come. The Mascot is a symbol for West Potomac — it stands for spirit and most important pride. The students at West Potomac view the Wolverine as something in which to look up to and to be proud of. The mascot adds an extra spark to West Potomac. The new Wolverine Mascot is not only of great significance, but something special.

THESE ARE THE BEST YEARS OF YOUR LIFE

TIME GOES BY FAST.

To the Seniors — the most important thing is graduation.

The Juniors are the class "in waiting". Waiting to have senior privileges, and waiting to be looked up to on campus.

The Sophomores — are still trying to figure out whether or not they even like high school.

The Freshmen — are just doing what they are told to do until they learn a better way.

Regardless of which class you are a member of, high school years bring fun and excitement for everyone. Such as driver's ed., and suddenly getting your license which becomes the most important thing in the world. Walking down the halls and having your name velled in all directions in some cases changing boy/girl friends every few months, going to football games, and we could never forget meeting at McDonald's after sporting events. And most importantly, hearing hundreds of times, "Where's the party?"

Of course there are also those embarrasing moments, like the time you tripped up the stairs, or when the teacher called on you aloud in class and you couldn't respond. All of these and more make high school life complete.

High school years can fly by. One moment your a freshman and then suddenly you've become a Senior. High School should be enjoyable as well as educational.

Every person has their own personal memories which make their high school years special. Regardless, no one should disagree to the fact that high school years are truly The Best Years of Your Life.

The Wolverines dominate the field during the Homecoming game. 35 points in the first half. During the half time activities, the princesses were escorted out onto the field. Excitement and anticipation mounted as Natalie Smith was crowned Homecoming Queen while Jimmy Arrington was named King.

During the second half of the game, King Arrington scored the final touchdown to top off the district championship and five straight shut outs for the Wolverines. On Saturday night, the tradition continued as the Homecoming Dance commenced. Most people went out to dinner beforehand and then dropped by the dance for some after dinner entertainment.

At the dance, there was a disc jockey that kept the beat going all night long. Annette Quisenberry said, "The dance was less than I expected. I think more people should have shown up." But others thought it was quite well attended. There was a wide variety of dresses.

GETTING TO SCHOOL ON TIME

How Difficult the Task

Some students reluctantly go to bed earlier because of the difficulties of getting up at 5:00 or 6:00 in the morning. It was depressing finding out that this year, West Potomac starts close to the "crack of dawn." Not many enjoy getting to bed at 8 or 9 at night, but it isn't long before they're off into a restful snore. One can't help weighing the pro's and con's of getting up from their covers and pillows that are so warm, especially when their alarm has recently shattered a wonderful dream.

For those "Lucky" enough to drive to school, there is the hazard of traffic which is added to the occasional insanity of checking parking permits that ruins many good moods.

"That is probably the worst sight to see that early in the morning, especially if you forgot your sticker", Senior Anne Stitt certainly agrees.

Too late, the final bell rings, testing the mind for original and inventive excuses. Some of the teachers even swallow the "I was talking to my counselor excuse."

WEARING THE BLUES JEAN JACKETS

In a class all by themselves

Lounging on the rock, thes students look comfortable in their cozy jean jackets.

Jean jackets have been the number one item in clothes for a long time. They have been worn by people since the 70's or maybe even, the late 60's. They are just as strong a fashion statement now as they were when they first became popular. It's the style and comfort that make people want to buy and wear them. And now, tradition is being transferred to West Potomac.

We have seen everyone around campus with jean jackets on. Some of the students wear them because it makes them look cool. Others wear them because they like the style - and it keeps them warm. And now with the techniques in acid wash, stone wash, or bleached denims, the jean jacket has taken on different forms. Oh, let's not forget the personal additions that are tacked on, sewed on, printed on, or pinned on which makes the individual's jacket unique.

Jean Jackets have been a favorite for the students at West Potomac High School for a long time.

Jean jackets are also popular because they can be worn year round, whether it is the cold of winter or the cool breeze of spring. They are back with more style: faded, stone washed, regular blue, with ruffles. safety pins, buttons, lone jackets, cropped ones . . . jean jackets are popular with every social group and this has just made them even more interesting.

SUMMER CAMP ATTENDANCE

All-psyched-up for the year!

Seniors Jennifer Houlgate and Manena Bernasconi are having a great time at yearbook camp, and their minds are as far as can be away from school and work.

For those of us who are proficient in a certain area, summer camp is a great way to improve those skills and meet quite a few friends. Among these many different kinds of camps are music camps (football, soccer, and baseball) and even cheerleading and drill team camps. The WP cheerleaders won many awards at camp this year, some consisting of endless spirit sticks and were 3rd among the 80 other squads that attended. On the other side of things, some students find work at local summer camps. Senior Missy Wilson was a counselor this summer at one of her favorite camp sites. For our football players, such as Senior Tom Davis, "summer camp is here. When everyone else is swimming and tanning we're up here at 8:00 am hitting, running and watching films in between. We do get to leave for an hour, but we have to be back up here by 3:00. Oh, don't forget about the meetings too . . . " On the lighter side, Senior Pete Messman attended church camp. He adds, "we got to cook our own food and everything, it was kind of boring. I did break my wrist, though!" In any type of camp, the fact of the matter is that they are a great opportunity to get away. They provide a chance to improve oneself in many ways, whether it be endurance, strength, stamina, or in Messman's case, ability to deal with pain.

GETTING INTO THE BOOKS

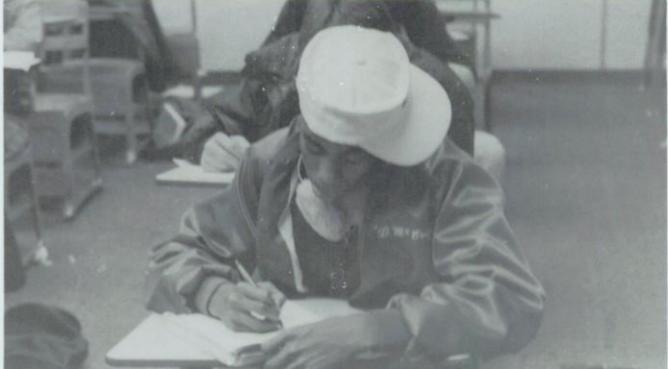

It's too much!

As all high school students know, sometimes it's not so easy to forget about summer; buckling down and studying. During the first few weeks, or maybe even the whole first quarter, we all have good intentions. Some people even manage to finish all of their homework in school. Usually, however, the next step is to bring home all the homework. but that is not necessarily to say that it gets done! Eventually, we realize that it's not going to be done, so we don't even bother carrying that extra weight!

Classrooms are a different story all together. By the time a student reaches ninth grade, the skill of pretending to pay attention has been perfected. This art usually includes having an open book placed in front of you, a pen in hand, and an interested look. At least in this way, students can absorb information — however unwilling to learn that student may be.

No matter what year a person is in, the end of the first semester marks the beginning of a slump. Seniors exhibit this characteristic in the extreme, but evervone looks forward to those fun-filled summer days once again. Unfortunately, students have to "go through the motions" for two more quarters. And in these two quarters, there are no snow days to look forward to, nor does the school board cancel school for sunny days. So for all, it's - "Back to the Books."

THE END OF THE DAY

After 6th period, Senior Bill Thresher is glad to make one last trip to his locker.

The first thing that comes to one's mind at the end of the day is relaxation. No Algebra, no Declaration dates, and definitely no Shakespeare are going through minds when the clock strikes 1:50. Usually these hours before dinner consist of kicking off one's shoes, grabbing some twinkies and coke, and flicking on the boob tube. (And that's exactly what the T.V. does; it turns a person into a real boob.) For the more lively student, some will let off school steam by heading to the mall and going completely crazy with Mom's credit card. Unfortunately, not all of us get to just kick back and take control. The Athletes, as well as the club members, have to remain in the school facility and perfect whatever it is they're here for. During football season, the majority of the players don't even get home until after 7 o'clock every night. Even after those long hours with out dinner, the players take up the most popular past time of them all sleeping. Although the fantasy accompanying the luxury of sleep is the most satisfying of them all, the realism of the statement, "Wake up, dear . . . it's time to do your homework", is one of the worst evils that we all are required to face.

These two students relax as the end of the day comes to a close.

Leaving school grounds is not an easy task at the end of the day.

DETERMINATION DETERMINATION DETERMINATION

HAVE IT TO SUCCEED

For college hopefuls, determination is the name of the game. In this world, especially today, there is a lot of competition. Whether it be academics, sports, or the work force, it makes a lot of students work extra hard toward those goals they want. Not only is there determination to reach goals foreseen, but there is also some for improving one's self in various ways. New Year's resolutions is a good example of the need for (or lack of) determination. Many people resolved to loose weight, or improve their character in general, but none of these can be accomplished if there is no will power. You've got to want it bad enough and be willing to work hard at it. Senior Cathy Rakowsky is "determined to be organized before I go off to college — in all aspects of the word." Indeed organization takes a lot of time and energy, whether it be one's room, or home, even a school locker can be a chore to keep straight. The bottom line is this: If one wants to succeed in this world, one has to be impressive in every way. If determination shows through all the things one does, it makes a better name for oneself. And that is the way to succeed.

On the occasion of an upcoming and especially brain-straining quiz, students dread the bell marking the beginning of that class. Feet slowly shuffle down the hall, mouths mumbling word formulas, brains strain to memorize as the eight minutes between classes slowly pass. Unfortunately, the bell always rings, and the class starts . . . usually, the teacher smiles devilishly and says "You're going to like this quiz . . . it's lots of fun!" The students reply in an unanimous groan - and then another groan when the first problem is seen. Surprised comments range from "what?!" to "when did we do this?!?" This is the time of day for a . . . firedrill. The alarm means a chance to ask questions about studied and unstudied material, catch up on gossip, or take a break from studies.

Firedrills have some draw backs, though. Those that occur on snowy days, rainy days, and cold days are not as much fun! Unfortunately for those devilish teachers, they know that their quizzes will usually be proved dull and void. Students have a special kind of knack for picking up as many answers as they can during the fire drills. "They just seem to be a gift from heaven, just telling me to go and collect as many answers as possible", comments Senior Brendan Sullivan. Even though a true fire alarm would be the ultimate relief from classes, practice ones will do just

LIFE'S MOST EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

OOPS!

For every person in this world, there has been at least one moment when one wishes he were small enough to crawl in a crack and hide. With winter comes the increased risk of slipping on that unseen sheet of ice, or having one's coat get stuck as a friend so generously slams the door shut. In addition comes the scary, but embarrassing possibility of casually sliding into a ditch on the side of the road. In all seasons, though, there seems to be a little leprechaun snapping his fingers, making crazy, embarrassing things happen. Unfortunately, most of these incidents happen when there are zillions of people around. As in the case of Senior Jenny Van Horn ... "In lunch one day, when I was a freshman, my brother's senior friend came up to me and FLEXED! Then he said in a very loud voice, 'My Miss Van Horn, it seems my chest is bigger than yours!' It was the worst!!" On the other hand, many regrettable incidents can be seen at sports practices. Senior Mike Haas remembers . . . "The boat just flipped . . . " For the Varsity Cheerleading squad it was a basketball game in Chantily. Debbie Galbreath recalls, "While running to do a time-out cheer, Elizabeth Davis tripped and fell in the middle of the gym floor in front of the entire student body! The game was delayed due to the player's uncontrollable laughter!" It's true that these moments can be the absolute worst in one's life, but when all is said and done, they can also bring many people a lot closer.

WHO ROCKS THE HOUSE

THE WOLVERINES DO!

Who rocks the house? The Wolverines do! Wolverine spirit reached an all time high this year, as many teams (both athletic and scholastic) achieved high recognition. But it's not only the winning that counts . . . Students are proud of West Potomac.

This proudness shows at the pep rallies, where all classes sported blue, silver, and white. And cheered loudly. It could be found in every day apparel; an active part of every student's wardrobe is a West Potomac sweatshirt! The spirit showed in conversations, where students proudly asserted "I go to West Potomac." And, of course, spirit shows on "The Rock."

Spirit is not just wearing school colors, or chanting school cheers, it shows in people's attitudes as well. It becomes obvious that students are spirited when sports events are packed, productions are sold out, and clubs have large memberships.

A prime example of school spirit was homecoming week. Contests for the most spirit between rival schools and classes were held. These contests include hall decorating (the sophomores won), spirit links (the seniors were victorious), and the powder puff football game (the Juniors beat the Seniors).

All and all, West Potomac shows it's spirit through it's games, contests, productions and clothing. To be percise, West Potomac rocks the house!!!

Taking it Easy

Relaxation

After a long, hard day, there are times when one just wishes he were at home with his feet up, drink by one's side, and the telvision on. This is the familiar desire for relaxation. For different people, there are different ways to relax. Many just love to sleep, but there are some who choose to do more creative things. Senior Eric Meyer claims, "the best way to relax is to watch cartoons. They're great for releasing the pressures of school." Senior Jim Mac Michael admits, "I just like to get in my car and drive ... at high speeds!" For others though, the opportunity to take it easy is not at hand. "I have to go straight to work right after school, and usually don't get home until after six o'clock . . . " sighs Senior Sarita Sinha. If she did have the chance, though, she'd go for it all and "take a trip to the Caribbean!!" On a more calm note, Jenny Van Horn from Singers West finds it "incredibly relaxing to just go home and sing with my tapes from All-Country Choir." It's true that there are many kinds of people in our school alone, and it just proves the old saying, "Different strokes for different folks "

PEOPLE AT THE END OF THE ALPHABET

THEY TRULY ARE SPECIAL

During spirit week, Debbie Galbreath, and her friends have fun.

It's true that some people say that "One saves the best until last," but in the cases of being at the end of the alphabet, that may not always be true. It is advantageous in the sense that, when seated in alphabetical order, one has enough time to complete the assigned homework while that teacher starts checking from the top. Also, there is the subiect of reports and presentations. If one is at the end of the grade book, it's most likely that he or she will have much more time to think about and complete that presentation. Advantages? Yes - for the procrastinators, but for the anxious, no! For senior Jenny Van Horn, for example, "I just like to get things over with in the beginning. It annoys me when I have to put off something due to the mess-ups of everyone else before me. Graduation is going to be interesting!" It's true that these types of people do get bored with waiting in line, but for those who love to put things off, it's a blessing some though, take on an optimistic view-point such as Senior Steve Wong, "I don't think one's last name should be a big deal in school as long as it doesn't discriminate against one's chances or doesn't provide equality to the student." All in all, being at the end of the alphabet isn't as bad as it seems, that is, if you can stand the wait!

After discussing the pitfalls of being last, Eric Zvoncovich pauses to collect his thoughts.

Checking on their requirements for college, Lisa Wetneck and Stephanie Wright are assisted by Mrs. Brent

HOBBIES

What is it that the students of West Potomac fill their spare time doing? The hobbies and interests of students vary greatly, They range from playing various sports to collecting objects or fixing things. Biking is a popular sport among students and many of them participated in races and work in bike shops. Others just ride for relaxation and fun. Another hobby students show a great interest in is fixing cars. They can work at gas stations, or take an Auto Mechanics class. Some just work on their own cars at home. These are only a few of the many different hobbies and interests that people spend their time on, but each hobby is unique to each person and there are far too many to cover them all.

Golfing is one hobby that carries through years of enjoyment as demonstrated by David Spoon. Always ready for fun Alex Early shows her good nature on the ski trip.

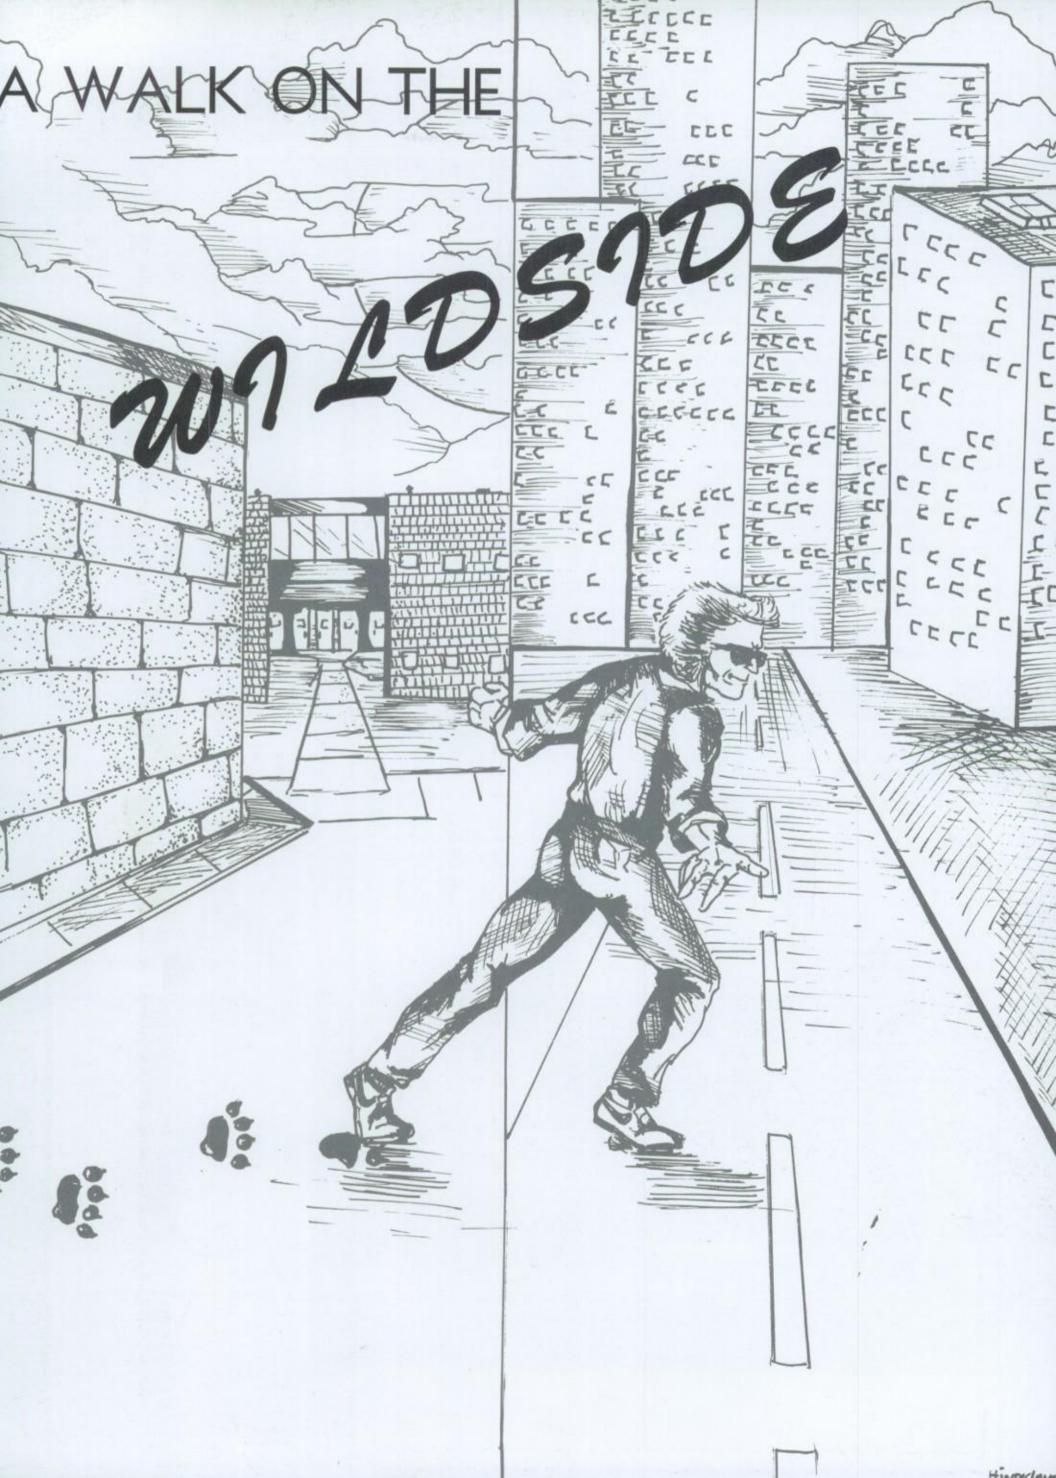

Making a colorful tie-die shirt, Ponch Sanchez displays a favorite hobby while above, volleyball is enjoyed by students in intramural sports.

On January 31, 1988, over 70,000 fans at San Deigo's Jack Murphy Stadium were there to see the Washington Redskins win their second Super Bowl Championship in six years.

They did it by simply manhandling the Denver Broncos with a final score of 42 - 10. The surprise of it all wasn't that they won it, it was the way they won it. After falling behind 10 - 0 in the first quarter, the Redskins scored five touchdowns of their five possessions in the second quarter. They broke records left and right. Doug Williams tied the Super Bowl record for most touchdown passes by throwing four in the second guarter. They broke the record for the most points in a quarter (35 points). Timmy Smith, who was just a rookie, rushed for 201 yards, breaking Marcus Allen's record in Super Bowl XVIII. They scored on an 80 yard touchdown play when Doug Williams threw to Ricky Sanders. That tied a record in Super Bowl history.

What qualities does he possess that made us believe in him, and feel he made the right decision? Maybe it was his looks, that innocent, boyish face with the large sad and honest eyes that were concentrating on the opposing faces while he calmly told the exact same statement over and over again. Maybe it was the fact that America wanted a hero. It was due time and this man epitomized a hero in America's happy eyes. Well, it happened, whether he is quilty or not, it seems that Ollie North is the man to remember in '88, the man who was the center of it all.

Other events that shaped the year included the Presidential primaries with George Bush securing the Republican Nomination while Michael Dukasis and Jesse Jackson engaged in a fierce battle to clinch the Democratic nod.

The nation proved its heart beat alive with compassion when all eyes turned on the backyard of a Texas child care provider as heroic measures enabled little Jessica McClure to be retrieved from a well pipe alive and virtually unscathed.

Ever since you were a kid you've loved cartoons, right? But why? It seems that cartoons take one into a world of make-believe, a world where there is no worries and takes one away from reality. After all, now, the reason one watches cartoons is to get away from things, to get some light-hearted humor without any thought or stress. Anyway one looks at it, cartoons are great fun. A poll taken at WePo shows that the Wolverine's favorite cartoon seems to be the good 'ol Flintstones. But who can

If it's Friday or Saturday and you're looking for something to do, the night life at West Potomac offers many options. Some may choose to go to Olde Town or Georgetown. Others may choose to take in a movie at the new Multiplex Theatre. Some choose to gather in small groups to socialize, and others choose the big party scene, and not to mention the "quick" stop at McDonald's. But if all else fails, you know you can always catch up with someone lingering around the parking lot at McD's.

Night Life

McDonalds is a popular night spot, and appeals to people of all ages.

... And the winner of the 1988 best tasting pizza contest is ... Dominos. Open all hours of the night, with a thirty minute delivery time, this pizza delivery place came out on top over all time favorites such as Pizza Hut, Shakeys, Don Albertos, Armands, and Generous Georges.

With the help of Dominos, a pizza party can be arranged in minutes, as well as a midnight snack, study break, and cheap (but tasteful!) date. Some enterprising groups even ordered pizza in their limosines for prom. Dominos was also the top choice for summer lifeguards who frequently ordered on their lunch breaks.

Of course, the greatest asset of Dominos and others are their convenience; you can always count on Dominos and others to deliver! Dancing the night away, these students enjoy W.P.'s Homecoming.

It seems that with every new car bought or given, there is an accompanying personalized license plate. These plates show names, dates of graduation, and personal mottos. Often times, the message can be deciphered by looking through a rearview mirror.

There is no one reason why people have personalized plates. Some claim hat it is a status symbol, others have one to be recognized. But in many cases the sole purpose of it is to be humorous.

License plates tend to reflect the abiliy and characters of the driver. For example, an unattached person's plate might read "SINGLE", and a person who is on the wild side might read "ANI-MAL". A person who is very money conscious might have one that says "PAID 4" on the back of his or her car.

Regardless of the reason, many West Potomac cars do proudly carry personalized license plates.

The issue, however, does not include polling the students, the object of teaching, in deciding these matters. Well, we have taken such a poll. Government teacher Mr. Wood had a sweeping majority of 60%, 30% of the polled couldn't decide, and 10% put in their vote for AP English 12's, and English 9's Mrs. Reynolds. WE'RE LISTENING

One thing that keeps us all going in our lives through thick and thin is the power of music. Different people find different ways to enjoy music. Just like some people find it more serious than others.

Most of the people in West Potomac can find all the music they need on the radio. But some get more seriously involved in the subject by spending most of their time on listening and buying music. Some of us like to enjoy and relax to such artists as Phil Collins, Whitney Houston, Michael Jackson, and Madonna. Others like to live in the fast lane with moving bands such as, Guns and Roses, Def Leppard, Dokken, and Testa. Still you can find even smaller audiences listening to such unknown bands as Modern English, The Sisters of Mercy, The Mission, and The Smiths.

These various types of music are what set students away from others.

This summer when you're on the beach or at the pool or maybe in Hawaii listening to your music try to give an ear to something new and different. It might spark something inside that makes you feel a little better than you did. That's the power of music.

Picking up his favorite tune Kiilo Davis finds time to relax with music.

Two highly rated radio stations this year were 99.1 WHFS; and 105.9 Classic Rock. Other real popular stations were 95.5, WAVA, and Q107. Music plays a significant role in most peoples life. Finding the right station is real important. Luckily we have a good selection to choose from in this area.

You wake up in the morning, take a shower and . . . turn on the radio! Right? But the question is what radio station do the students at West Potomac prefer?

"We've got ... STYLE!!" Bertweshes Coarpoins

What is style? It is what you wear or how you act? It all depends on how you look at it. Some students have a style which is all their own, others tend to follow the crowd. Style can be shown in dress, talk, or even walk.

Anne Stitt says that style "reflects a person's personality." Most students will agree to this as they are constantly trying to be unique and show that they have style.

You may have never put this into consideration before, but have you ever really sat down and thought about which soap opera you like most? For girls the guestion would be easy to answer, but for guys, how many guys do you know that actually are up to date on soaps? Not too many.

Recently at West Potomac, the polls have showed that General Hospital came in a whopping first. Port Charles seems to be an adventurous place to Wolverines. Along down the line, Santa Barbara, which is actually filmed in California was rated second favorite. Close behind was The Young and the Restless, and rating right under that one was Days of Our Lives.

Soap operas also make interesting conversation pieces at the lockers between classes, trying to figure out who kidnapped Anna Lavery, why Cruise Costello is mad at his wife, and what new scheming ideas Jill Abbott has in store. All in all, think about it, which would you rather do? Homework, or catch up on the soap world.

Other than newspapers, televisions, and radio, magazines help broaden our knowledge. They are full of all sorts of things that newspapers, etc... wouldn't even consider telling us. For examples, when can we get new ideas for dressing up our meals, not to mention question? Where can we get a real look at that popular rock star or sports star, magazines influence our opinions and expand our knowledge because there is a variety of themes.

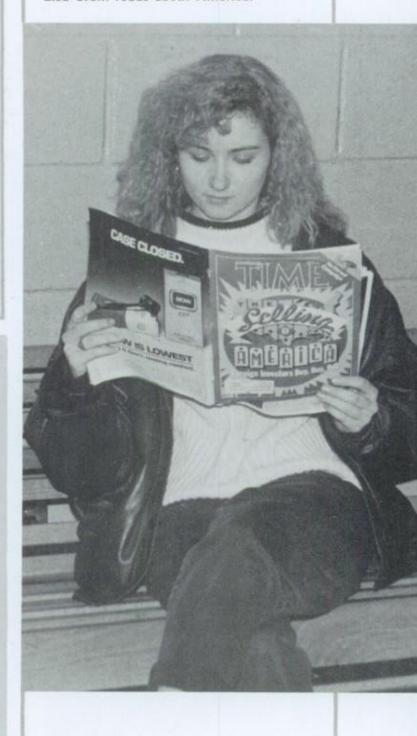

Because of the variety of magazines, our knowledge is increased in so many things. Two favorite magazines of the students body this year were Elle, Sports Illustrated. Seventeen, and Rolling Stone. Elle and Seventeen are full of fashion ideas, recipes, and answers to questions people are afraid to ask.

June 15, 1988 — the day of bliss, the day to be alive, and the day that all Seniors have been waiting for and working for since their Freshman year. Everyone invisions the "day of bliss" in their own little way. Some will be making speeches while the rest of us listen. Some will be waving to relatives in the bleachers, and some will be thinking of the aftermath. Graduation can be the happiest time and also the worst time. An entire chapter of life is ending. Never again will the class of '88 have to endline high school drudgeries or concerns. College will be a completely different situation. However, it is time when you leave the people you have known for years, all your life, and fear begins to set in and a final realization that the high school Seniors are now adults.

After years of Fairfax County public schools, Senior Nick Mohler appears ready for something new.

Comic Relief

Nearly everyone reads the comics and everyone that reads them has a favorite. In a yearbook poll conducted throughout school Calvin and Hobbes was the runaway choice of readers. "Calvin and Hobbes is great because it shows the imagination of a five year old." commented Steve Smith. Robb Patterson also likes Calvin for his ability to twist the roles of child and adult.

West Potomac students are equally vocal about what they do not like. The resounding loser? Soap opera comics such as Mary Worth and Apartment 3-G.

Posing the guesion "What do you ike most about West Potomac?" o students and aculty provided nany diverse anwers; a diversity hat is reflected in he school populaion. "I'm Happy to be in a chool thats buildnas are relatively new." commented Todd Thomas, transfer student rom Florida.

Other reponses ranged rom the laid back

We have a student body that encompasses almost every socio-economic background yet manages to work together, earning and cooperating with each other to develop a sense of belonging and understanding.

West Potomac's Staff and Administrators were also mentioned as likeable parts of the school. "The teachers are willing to help when needed and their personalities are so diverse." stated Kirten Anderson. Jennifer Rice likes the act that the "administrators know whats going on; they are aware of the needs of the school."

Keeping a sense of humor is a likeable trait among students. Here Shelli Lynch laughs on the bench despite her injury.

A Home Away from Home

Lockers are used for different purposes. Some use it like a closet, they decorate it with their favorite groups or singers. Some even have a change of clothes in their lockers. Toothbrushes are also stored in lockers. Some still use lockers strictly for books. Lockers can be that little space which serves as a home away from home.

On the first day of school, students get the lists from their teachers of all those notebooks and other supplies they have to get for their classes. After some students buy all their supplies on the first or second day of school it seems like forever, carrying all that stuff around, until they finally get their lockers. Then it is destruction time. They just shove their books, clothes, etc. and the mess begins. Soon they begin to get bored with starring at the blankness of the locker, so they decorate it with their own unique ideas. With time, the tape starts to wear off and all their decorations start to fall off and its even more messy. With all this mess, there's bound to be jammed lockers! Now this is really annoying and frustrating because students would rather be somewhere else then their lockers, so a good kick usually helps. There are other students who "live at their lockers". They are always there running conversation with friends. They plan for the upcoming weekend and some even eat lunch at their lockers. Having a locker is truly a "home away from home" for many students.

Using a locker for a prop Chris Laux waits patiently for Katie Cummings, and rests for a moment on her books.

Lockers placed conveniently near classrooms are a boon to Willie Faulkner's day.

It's The Little Things That Get You

Your friend is late for absolutely everything, there's gum stuck all over the place, especially in the water fountains and puddles of water on the bathroom floor. Well, these are just some of those little amonging things that people have to deal with day after day. What does one do about all these "pet peeves?" When you reach into the coin return of the pay phones and find ketchup, do you yank the phone from the wall in shear anger? Or, when the cashier at a store puts all of your change on top of the dollar bills so that they can fall all over the place, do you slap the cashier around for awhile until he gets the message? No, as we have all seen, pet peeves are adily part of life. Pet peeves aren't just something that pops out of nowhere. Usually, they develop from annoyances that are repetitious or even from individual diosynoracies. So, the next time you come across crumbled, used tissues on desk tops or someone going the speed limit when you're in a hurry, ust sit back, take a deep breath, and relax, it could be worse.

Waiting in lines doesn't have to be a problem for Stephanie Berry, Christie Elliot, Alexis Bacer, Harry Williams and Wendy Bridges.

Walking outside to class in the rain proves to be a peeve of W.P. students as shows Jennifer Caul.

"TRENDS"

What do you do on rainy, boring, "no-party" weekends? "I just get together with a few friends, sit back and watch the good old T.V.", exaggerates Junior Carrie Fultz, "and when there's nothing on . . . rely on the dependable Erol's card."

Many students at West Potomac agree that having a VCR and most importantly the parent's Erols card comes in handy when there isn't anything going on, no one is at McDonald's, or more commenly grounded for a numerous amount of reasons.

HBO, Showtime, and Cinemax provides some good movies but if you were to ask around, Erols would be a more reliable source for getting a variety of movies, the newest ones too, for just a couple of bucks that it would cost that you saved at McD's. And Erols is even more convenient if you missed the movie when it was at the theatre.

Deciding which movie to choose, Senior Anne Stitt finds a winner.

Where'd Ya Get Those colored Peepers?

Everyone's always looking for an easy way to change their looks, some simple answer to all their physical monotones. For people with prescription glasses, this answer may not be too remote. This suggestion, you ask? It's simple - colored contacts. They could just possibly change the whole overtone of one's face. People with naturally pretty eyes can enhance and deepen their eye color with an agua or turquoise tint. Even people with perfect 20/20 vision are able to get non-prescription lenses. The cost of these gems can be pretty steep, ranging from $150 to $300. This isn't too expensive, if it's thought of in terms of being the same price as a second pair of glasses. These lenses aren't for everyone, though. Many people'e eyes are quite sensitive and can be irritated by any kind of lens. Dust particles can easily get caught behind the lens and even scratch the retina of the eye. Even though these disadvantages exist, many people simply choose to deal with them because the satisfaction of knowing that one is a little bit more interesting then ever before gives one an unexplainable glow of self-assurance. "It's just amazing ... the confidence that

Academics

1988 was a year of change, yet school went on as usual. Teachers taught; we learned. Not only did we learn that E=mc2 and an imputation is not an insinuation, we learned the skills, facts and figures that we'll need to succeed in life.

Everyone had to face change of some sort in their academic life. The seniors had college or a job, the underclassmen had new challenges and requirements in the same setting as before. By facing these changes, we began to sense what our academic interests, strengths, and weaknesses were and used this knowledge to grow, improve ourselves and prepare for the future.

Enhancing Success

Some people have a pre-conceived notion when they think of Learning Disability class. But the fact about it is that they are average or above average students. They have to qualify for the program by taking placement tests. In which they have to score normal or above normal. The classes are to help the students overcome their own disability. There isn't just one disability, it could either be in Math, English, etc. Its not, not being able to read.

The students can have one resource class and have other regular classes. But they go on the same schedule as students who have all regular classes.

There are about 8 to 10 different teachers. The classes are different than regular class only because they go a little slower. But they cover the same material as regular classes do.

There are famous people who have learning disabilities, such as Albert Einstein, Norman Rockefeller, Cher, Henry Winkler, etc. This goes to show that people with a Learning Disability aren't ever going to be limited in whatever they want to accomplish later on in life.

Another fine resource for students is the Guidance Department. Besides scheduling and holding conferences with parents, counselors offer a wealth of other services ranging from college and career placement to referral of students in need of aid in a variety of social services. Guidance counselors also provide counseling for students involved in personal crisis.

MATHEMATICS

Math Teacher, Ms. Casey tries to express the importance of "king" during math class.

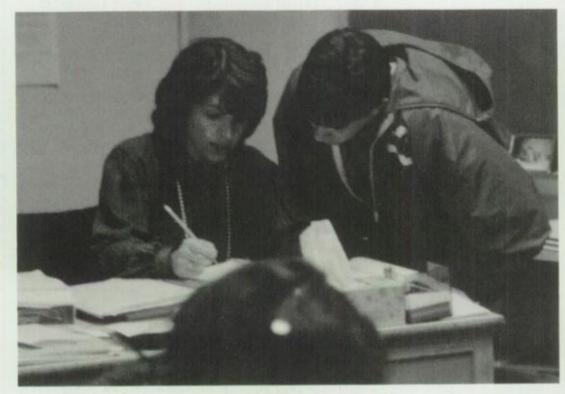

Every student encounters a math course one time or another. In high school 3 credits for math is required to graduate. Most freshmen start out with Algebra or Geometry depending on which course they finished in Jr. High.

The more mathematically minded students take Analytic Geometry, Trig, or Calculus in their first years of school. But others who would rather pursue English or other non-mathematic courses just take the basic 3-year math choice. This starts out with Algebra, continues to Geometry, and is completed with Algebra 2-Trig. Analytical Geometry and Functions would come after the regular courses which in turn would be followed by Calculus.

Many students are surprised to find that they will or might do much better in one certain math courses than another. Whether it is because of the teacher, or just the courses itself, the difference is apparent.

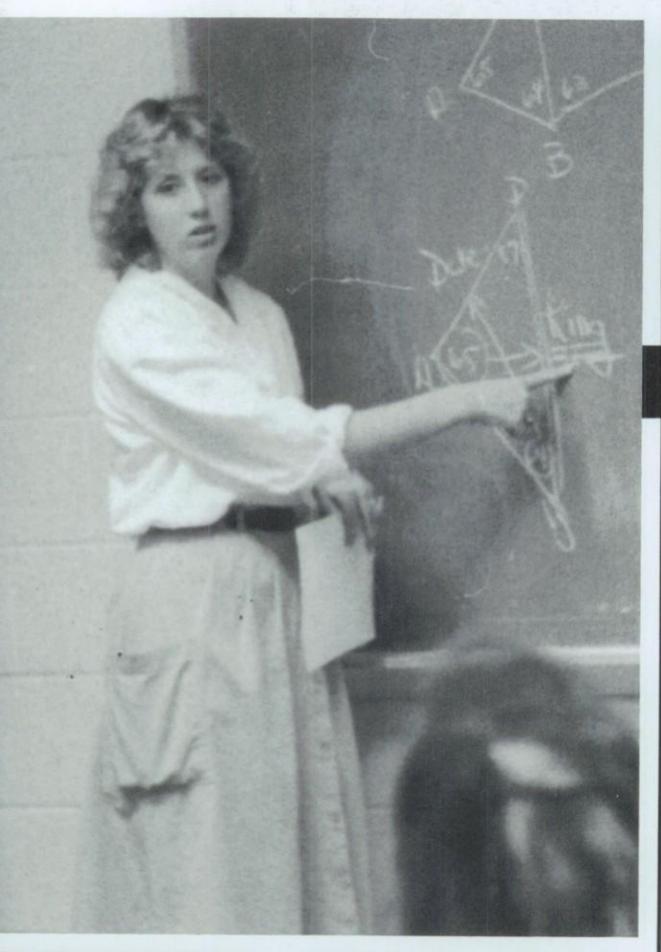

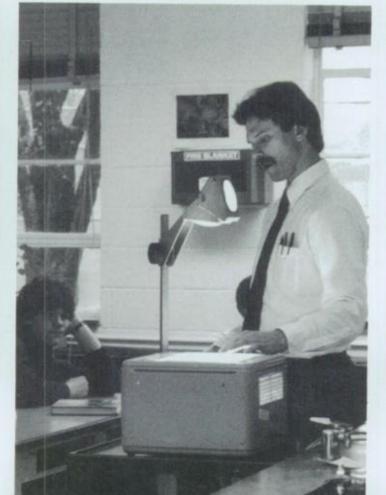

Getting extra help on a math problem Ms. Bowman points Jimmy Carter in the right direction.

Despite the faulty heating system, Senior Jimmy Carter tries his best to keep warm while working in Algebra 2 Trigonometry.

Creative Release

Outside of Math and English and other required courses, West Potomac students are allowed to release their creativity through various fine Arts courses. For the beginner artist, one can take art or photography 1, and the more experienced artists can take AP studio theatre IV or Advanced Band. Fine arts courses are popular among the students because the success is directly related to the students creativity and imagination.

This success has lead to an award winning department, with students bringing in awards in chorus festivals, National Scholastic Art awards, Band competitions, and Thespians recognition gained from these competitions have kept the Fine Arts department an exciting place to be.

Joint Success

The school library is often a very helpful place for the students and staff of West Potomac. Many students can be found there finishing up homework assignments and cramming for tests during lunch. The library also offers a wide variety of research material and pleasure reading in books and magazines. Many teachers choose to take their students to the library when a report or research paper is assigned.

The Library, however, is no island. It has been piloting a new computer service called "dialog" that offers a computer link for students or teachers to type in their desired topic with the computer answering all the material the library has to offer.

Having three teachers trained in its use, the Business department has taken full advantage of this new service proving that there is profit in partnership.

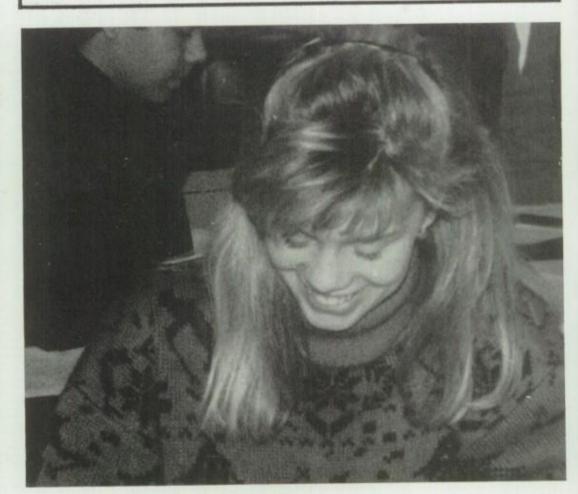

The new computer program costs 15.00 an hour and is now in a trial period. A bright future seems to be in store for this new resource. The library is an integral part of the success of the academic program with its combined efforts involving other departments benefiting everyone.

Adjusting

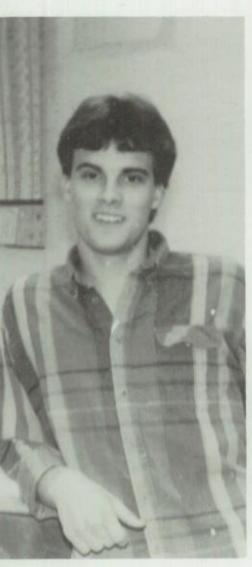

From near and far, student reflect on their new school. Many times complaints are filed; some of these complaints are substantial, and should be voiced, but then other things are so slight that they don't need to be heard. Two West Potomac students were asked how they felt toward their education at West Potomac and how it compares with their old schools.

Bam-Bam Casey, a new student from Colorado, played on the JV football team and feels that his old school was better. However, he likes the school spirit that is so important at West Potomac. He said he used to be allowed to leave for lunch and he also stated that if a student played a sport, the student didn't have to go to class. P.E. was a study hall, more or less or an extended lunch period. He also said that if a student got caught for skipping, he would only be sent to the Principals office for a lecture before he could go back to class. Bam-Bam also added that the classes are harder here, but that it is better here because he is learning more,

which he feels is something very important.

Neil Parech, from England, likes West Potomac much better than his old school. One big reason, is that his old school was an all boys private school. He had to live there all year and was only allowed to come home three times a year. He also remembered that if someone felt bold enough to try to bring a girl into the school and get caught, he would be suspended. When asked why he went to private school, he said his parents made him because the quality of public schools in England is very low. In his old school, he would have to address all of his teachers by either sir or Ma'am. No one would ever act up, because every time they got in trouble they got spanked with a cane, which Neil called getting "caned". He likes the great amount of school spirit, like during spirit week when everyone dressed up.

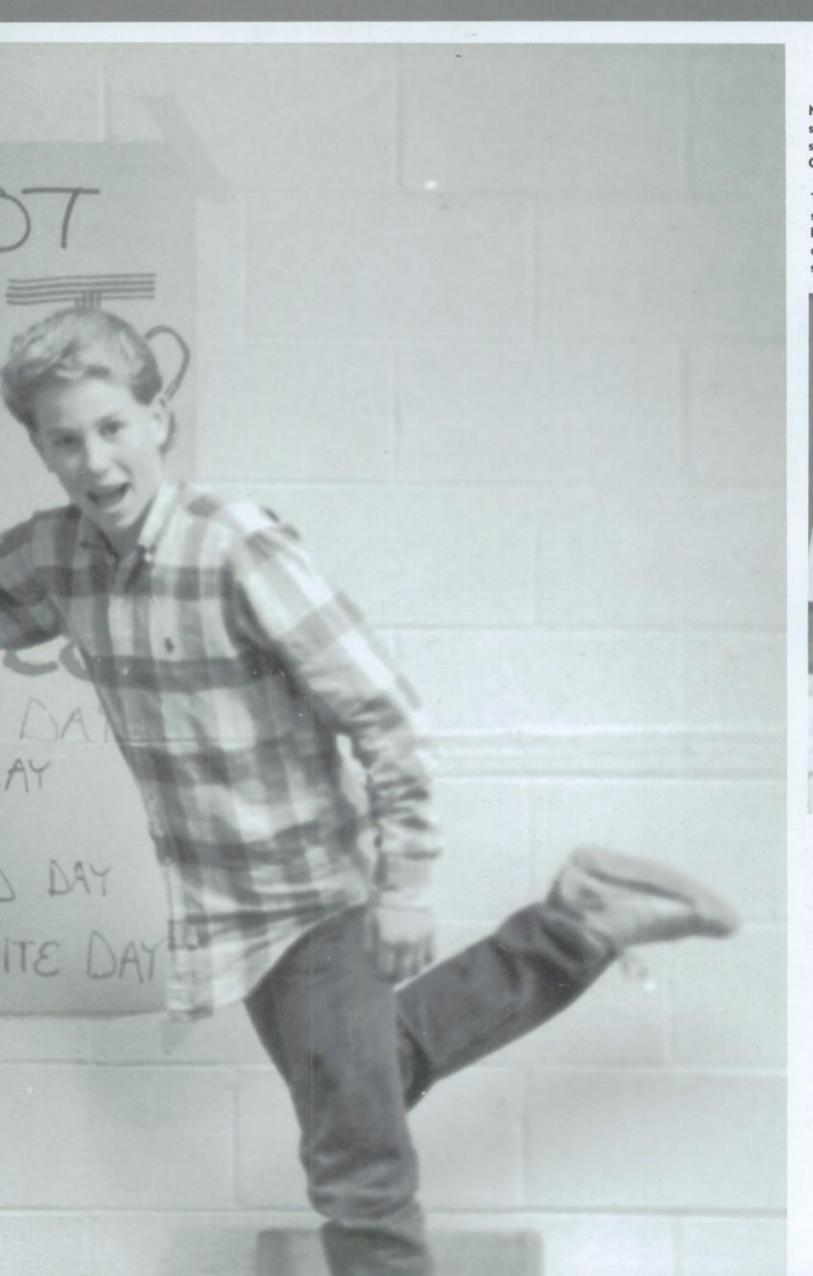

So if there is a complaint about West Potomac, think twice, it could be better, but then it could always get worse.

CHALLENGE

Reviewing her latest program, Annette Limoges takes time to get advice in A.P. Computer Science. Deep in thought of what the next answer is, Rachel Callahan takes yet another "impossible" AP test.

West Potomac offers a plethora of interesting Advanced Placement courses. AP courses allow high school students to earn college credit while still in secondary school. The selection of courses is quite bodacious. AP French, AP Calculus, AP Art, and AP Biology are only a few of the classes available.

AP classes are distinguished from pedestrian classes because as one senior, Tom Olds, says, "They involve substantial thinking." The coursework is very demanding and allows no time for digressions either in class or at home. The counselors of juniors and seniors is that AP courses are "A challenge."

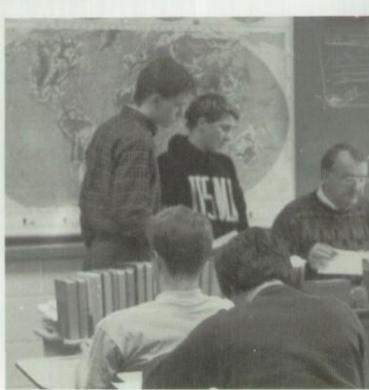

Not only do students wish to be challenged and earn credit; but they want to learn. Teachers of Advanced Placement courses stimulate their students to learn and; even more in importantly, to cogitate. As Mr. Levy says, "... er... ah... What is this?" Finally, AP courses are worthwhile. Senior Lawrence Locklin says, "Take them! They're worth it!"

Artist Mimi Theobolds concentrates on her newest studio endeavor.

School Within A School

Last year, a unique program, School Within A School, was instituted at West Potomac. With an atmosphere designed for 9th grade students, it offers some special bonuses to prepare these student for high school life.

Four teachers volunteered to pilot the program, one from each of the core subjects most ninth graders take: English, Earth Science, Algebra, and World Cultures. These teachers worked in an interdisciplinary fashion, creating units which tied the subject fields together and teaching them in blocks of time other than the usual 50 minute periods.

Classrooms are located on one hallway so that teachers and students can work together with ease. Aside from offering a stimulating curriculum, School Within A School personnel were dedicated to extending the cognitive abilities of their students and encouraging them to use their minds in a more creative fashion. With expectations high it was hoped that all students would achieve at or above their ability level.

PRACTICAL ARTS

VOCATIONS

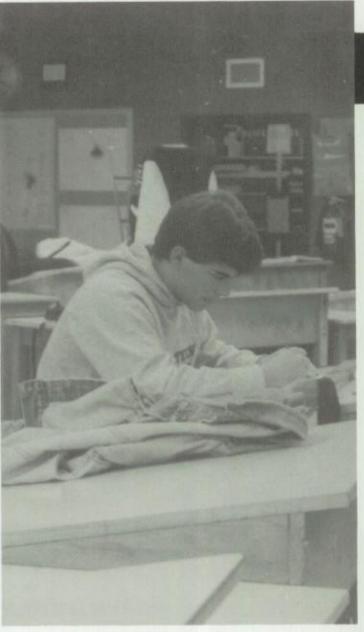

Building Lifelong Career Skills

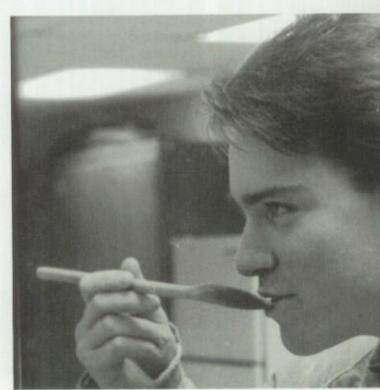

The Practical arts convey both personal and career enhancement to students enrolled in the various classes that fall under this course description. The reasons students enroll in the practical arts classes are as varied as the students themselves. Many students take these classes in order to develop skills necessary in a future career. Others find the realities of daily living to be complex and enroll to prepare themselves for independent living.

Being a student in these classes also enables students to become a member of the various vocational clubs such as V.I.C.A., D.E.C.A., and H.E.R.O. These groups function to foster a sense of community within the students as well as provide support and contact with various members of the business community.

The importance of these classes is immeasurable. A student needs to learn many things during their tenure in school.

Hands on experience plays an important part in Auto Mechanics as demonstrated by Kevin Leung while Mark Hawes and Mr. Laporte observe. Science

THEORIES AND FORMULAS

Among the many classes that are required to earn a high school diploma, science classes are some of the most interesting. Science courses, which include: Earth Science, Biology, Chemistry, and Physics, teach the needed knowledge that will expand the technology of the world. Earth Science is the basic science course, which involves the study of rocks. This course is taken by either freshmen or sophomores. Biology is a science which studies all living things. Dissecting frogs and identifying insects are a few things students get to participate in. Learning about atoms and different theories is what Chemistry offers. This course is basically for Juniors but many tenth and twelfth graders take it. Physics, the last science course that most seniors take, teaches about properties, the solar system, and the study of electricity. Although the courses in science may be tedious and complicated at times, there are courses offered at West Potomac to stimulate everyone into wanting to learn more.

Not So Foreign To Some

As many students realize the growing need of communicating, foreign language courses prove to be classes. Colleges worthwhile also require certain years of a language depending in which college they attend and getting a head start in high school is helpful. Some teachers like Ms. Coile teach Russian and Spanish and Mr.

Ahern and Ms. Moore teach French and Spanish. Many countries require the knowledge of at least two languages, U.S. being the most lenient. Many people believe in the future, the United States will need to know at least two languages, and high school is a good place to learn them.

Always approaching Latin in a unique way, Dr. Garlarde tells a story.

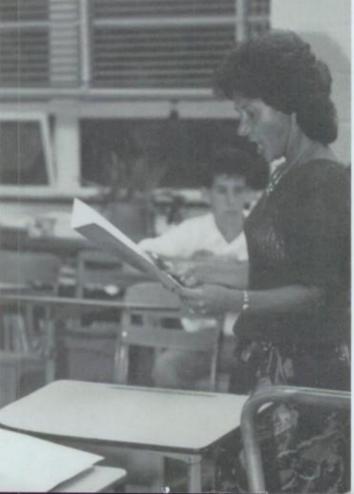

First year Latin students Jose Lozano and Richard MacCalliste absorb the information in different ways.

Senior Leaders

Elected Have Varied Tasks.

Being a senior officer requires a lot of hard work and commitment. Not only are there meetings after school every Tuesday, but they often last up to an hour and a half long. After a surprising win last year, new Senior Class President Rob Patterson has tried his hardest to make the difference that was expected of him. Other officers hoping to make that difference were new Treasurer Dana Makielski, Secretary Shelly Robertson, and Rep. Kelly Hawthorne. Suzy Nece rose from the office of secretary to Vice-President this year.

Quite a few important decisions come along with the responsibilities, such as the choice of speakers for graduation and Baccalaureate, in addition to the plans for the Senior Breakfast. Organization and teamwork were a big part of the schedule, especially in building a first rate Senior Class float. Also, the fight for Senior privileges took weeks of meetings, but finally brought some well-deserved results.

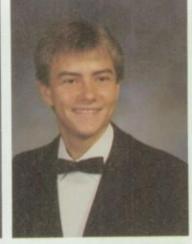

Choosing Senior Announcements was another job that started even before the year began, and fund-raisers were held to keep the class in great financial standing.

Going Places

Seniors Plan Fun Trips

Obviously Seniors are not the only class to take trips during the summer, everyone goes on vacation. But there is a distinctive difference between a trip taken by say a Freshman, as opposed to a Senior. For instance, a Freshman is more likely to go on vacation with their family, whereas a Senior usually has a little more freedom and can go with friends.

One of this summer's favorite vacations spots was the beach. Jennifer Houlgate, when asked about her vacation at the beach said, "It was fun, I met a lot of fraternity guys."

Beach week is usually considered by the Seniors to be their favorite vacation. During beach week, Seniors get together with their friends and head to the nearest beach for a week of partying.

Most Seniors end up spending Christmas with their parents or relatives, but some of the luckier ones will be spending Christmas skiing with their friends.

Ft. Lauderdale, or any beach, will do during Spring Break, when Seniors from not only here, but all over the country, flock to the

Freedom Ride

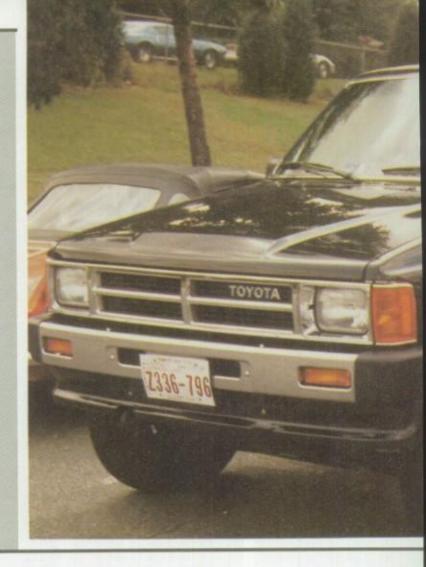

Fascination of Four Wheels

To the majority of the students, cars are an important part of life. They are, in essence, the "key to freedom". In some cases they even prove to be advantageous during certain tests; "Oh! Mr. Levy! But for those who don't know the joy of owning their own car, there's always the option of borrowing Mom and Dad's car for the day.

After school started, it was increasingly difficult to obtain a parking permit, due to the enormous presale the week before. Students often had to carpool and therefore sometimes presenting a problem with tardiness.

Graduation Controversy

At the end of the past school vear, Juniors, that is, Seniors-to-be, voted on where to have their graduation. The choice was between having it at the High School, or at the Patriot Center on George Mason University campus.

The students voted heavily in favor of the graduation being held at the High School. The class of 1988, which is last class of the two merged schools, ran into problems in having the graduation at the high school. First of all is the problem of less tickets. Each student would receive four tickets. This was upsetting because most students wanted to invite friends and family members like grandparents. With only four tickets, they would be unable to invite these people.

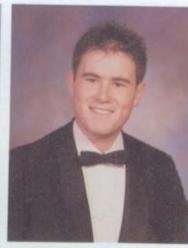

The main problem of tickets was caused by the administration deciding to have the graduation in the Gym instead of the Football stadium. Their reasoning was the chance of bad weather.

Another problem that developed was the lack of parking at the school. But this problem was solved by the idea to satellite parking at the Mount Vernon Pool. This means that people will park at the pool and the school bus will bring the people up to the High School.

Senior Slump Hits Students

Applications to colleges are in, and some people have even gotten their results back. For those lucky people who were accepted, this is a deadly time. It's Senior Slump time. The underclassmen always claim that they have it, but they only have a mild case of this dreaded disease.

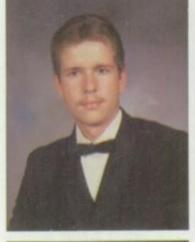

The Senior Slump disease has many terrible side effects that often show up on the Senior's report cards. The symptoms are very noticeable and range from excessive amounts of sleep, often taken from class time, to memory loss in the areas of books, assignments, and class times. It is believed that Senior Slump is contagious and can be caught very easily. Once one sends in their college applications, their resistance level decreases rapidly. No cure has been discovered yet, but parents and teachers everywhere have been looking for one for many years.

This disease can prove to be very dangerous to the grades of any Senior. If you witness anyone that appears to be plagued with the dreaded Senior Slump . . . leave them alone, all they want to do is enjoy their Senior year and have a good time.

Senior Exams Cramming Proves Essential

Senior exams are a turning point in a lot of Seniors' lives. They represent the end of the year. For some, they just decide that exams are over and they've passed so no need to work anymore since applications are all in. Many teachers have stated that there is a severe drop in participation in the second semester, and everyone knows that there is really a drop of interest towards the end of the year.

The real question is, do people really make an effort to pass exams? Dana Makielski says: "I don't study because if I haven't learned it in the course of the year, I'm not going to learn it in one night." Many people have expressed the same opinion. So, the consensus is that, the Seniors really don't care.

This may present problems for Seniors later in the year. Exams are recorded on the mid-year report to colleges, and if the Seniors are not studying then the test scores may not be the best they can be. One would think that the nearer one gets to being accepted to college, the harder they would work. This would make the chances better for acceptance.

Going Crazy

Seniors Show Their Spirit

"We've got spirit, yes we do, we've got spirit, how about you?!" That is a cheer that is often heard at football games. It is usually chanted by the Senior class. And it can't be more true.

The Senior section at the football games is always the loudest and most obnoxious. One of the rituals at games or pep rallies is yelling things at the underclassmen. Seniors feel that they have the right to yell such things because they have put up with it for three years.

Not only is the class spirit shown at football games, but also in their great support in building the homecoming float. Every year a large group gathers at Sheera Rosenfeld's house to build a float that will be above and beyond all the others.

Seniors also show this class unity and spirit when it comes to decorating the halls before the Mount Vernon game, and dressing up for spirit week. This summer the painting of the bleachers drew the seniors together before school started and boosted them into a lively, spirit-filled year.

Pindi Sparks and Jeff Faust are the epitome of uniqueness in our Senior class. If the class needs to be reminded of their pride, just look for Christy Hicks or Nick Mohler. Leslie Murray and Jim MacMichael have the personalities that help them get good friends. Out of their many qualities, egotism is one that Jenny Callahan and Tom Davis display. Jamie Ferguson and Suzy Nece are friendly people that can be called flirts. To tell someone an unbelievable story, go to Jen Baskette or Rob Lancaster — they'll believe it. Jenny VanHorne and Eric Meyer aren't afraid to speak out. And you'll likely be reading about Sarah Hougen and Andrew Utter in the paper soon.

When it comes to having style and the latest fashions, the Senior class picked Conan McDonough and Chris Walker and Keun Young Lee. If you see someone with a confused look on their face, it could most likely be Elizabeth Davis or Nick Weiss. Two people who just make you say, "Aren't they cute?" are Nicole Battaglia and Tim Kritcher. Heather Peterson and Brendan Sullivan have eves that make you look twice to see them again. Senior Scholars

Reap Rewards

Every year, selected students participate in a mock Virginia government the summer before their Senior year. This is called Boys' and Girls' State. This year, the programs were held at Lynchburg and Longwood colleges. Governor's School is the more prestigious program in which a student can participate in Virginia. It consists of two programs — Science, which was at Virginia Tech, and a Liberal Arts program which was held in Richmond. The Top Ten students, out of a Senior class of 501, have worked four long, hard years to achieve their high academic standing.

JUNIORS

CLASS of 1989

This years Junior class was amazingly successful. Amidst the exciting and hectic pace of the beginning of the year we jumped in there and won first prize for the second year in a row for our Homecoming Float. Breaking a long lived tradition we were able to beat the Seniors in powder puff and we also made sure that the prom would live up to Junior class calendar. Not bad for the first class to go through all four years together at W.P.

This year the Juniors had many new responsibilities to face decisions about things that come after high schoo were on our minds along with the pressure of grades and the thrills of driving. Much time was spendoking to our future. I hope this year was as special to everyone as it was to me.

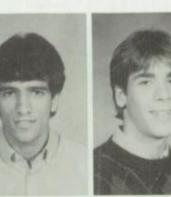

Best of luck to the Class of 89 Michelle Madison

Classy Rings

Many adorn their fingers with styles they picked themselves and some are worn around the neck to show friendships. What ever reason most are worn or bought for remembrance of the high school years, they are the class rings.

Either the end of the Sophomore year or the very beginning of the Junior year is when the rings are first encountered. Although they are offered to Seniors as well, the excitement is shown more by the Juniors. The custom of turning the ring towards the pinky finger the same amount of times as the year you graduate is carried on by some, the majority of which are girls. Many traditions go along with the rings to make them seem

A Class With Pep

As the class of '89 becomes more involved with school spirit, you'll find these Juniors decorating the hall for spirit week with encouraging posters for the football team in the big game against Mount Vernon (which we won!). The Junior girls could be found playing football against the Senior girls which upraised the Junior's class spirit because for the first time in a long history chain, the Juniors won! Also during spirit week, many Juniors dressed up in the favorite pajamas for PJ day, in togas, and in their beach wear. The class showed their enthusiasm at the pep rally before the Mt. Vernon football game and dressed in their blue, silver, and white attire. More students are participating in school spirit activities and hopefully by next year, the whole class will be filling the stands at the football games and other sports events cheering for the class of '89. Juniors believe that now that the they are out of the lower class stages a sense of pride and leadership is displayed. Rachel Fecchio thinks the class needs a lot more spirit as does Beep Veatch, but there's always next year!

Future Preparations

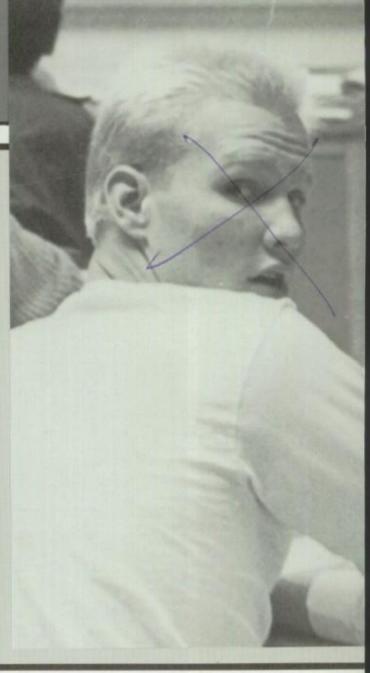

The Junior year is a big part of your high school life: PSAT's and SAT's make it or break it for grades. It is a big year — the year that colleges base most of their decisions and the year that you seriously start looking at colleges.

When asked the question "How do you feel about being a Junior?" most reply with a simple "good". Looking towards the future, Raleigh Trumbo said "One more year till I'm a senior." Some really had no definite opinion, such as Brendan McDade when he answered "Who cared?" As a whole, most say that their Junior year is/was a great year for hard studying and great memories.

Taking a break from his studies in class, Rob McGuckin glances back for help on a problem.

Soon Enough

"At least I only have one more year until I'm a senior and out of this school" is the common response a person would get if he asked a Junior how they liked school. College applications are becoming part of the picture as are SAT's, but all of this will be behind them soon enough. Lee Fernandez says "It's kind of scary to have college so close, but I'm anticipating the change." Many Juniors feel the same way as Lee - leaving all their high school friends and going into bigger and more difficult schools. The big 'SAT'

Most Juniors are thinking about how important grades are this year and trying to decide where they want to attend college. Since colleges take the SAT's into consideration on letting a student into their school, the pre-scholastic aptitude test (PSAT) is a worthwhile preparation for the more important SAT's. Nerves can alter one's results because many let the thought of how important they are worry them while taking it. People tend to do excess worrying which causes stressful studying and isn't al-

To improve their scores and better prepare themselves for the SAT's, students have the opportunity to take a SAT prep course. As for everything these courses have their disadvantages and advantages. The disadvantages are that for one, you must pay a high price for the better courses which for some don't make enough of a difference to be worth the money, but the advantages for others are the higher scores. And for those who believe in the saying "If at first you don't succeed try, try, again," the test can be taken an unlimited number of times if you have the money it costs to take the test.

Timing your Fun

Having to time your fun or watch the clock every five minutes to make sure you're going to make it home on time, can be a real pain, but for most Juniors whose curfews range from 11:30 to 2:00 a.m. they at least have a few hours to spend with their friends before they have to go home. the issue and trust their kids' judgement to be home at the reasonable hour given. A lot depends on who they are with, what they are doing and where they are going. If the kids decide to take advantage of the 'free' nights and come home at an ungodly hour or at least a half-hour past their curfew, they may face such things as yelling and lectures by parents or guardians. Friendships that 'Clique'.

Glancing around West Potomac, one would find a wide variety of groups of friends. There are friends that all hang around together at school during lunch and on weekends at parties, movies, dances, sports events, or whatever they all choose to do, even if it's just sitting at ones' house watching t.v. Then there are also others who not only have the big group of friends to spend time with, but they have just a few close

Many of these close friends often tend to be boyfriends or girlfriends who can take up a lot of time. Junior Lisa Vickers enjoys spending time with her boyfriend on one weekend night and her friends the other night to solve this problem. New student Chris Bradford has found his group of friends friendly and fun. Many others have found there own group of friends to help get through the year. For these friendly Juniors, it isn't hard to find the 'clique' that fits them.

Being enlightened by Senior wisdom, Junior Garret Johnston lends an ear to the secrets of Brenda Lasker.

Involvement

Now that the Sophomores are in their second year and are experienced with high school life, they get more involved in school activities. Many sophomores get into clubs, sports and other activities. Sophomores also get involved more because they are not intimidated as much any more by the upper classmen. Getting involved early is a good idea because it gives them the chance to meet different people it also makes for a more spirited class.

Mood & Music

It would be extremely difficult to locate anyone in this school who does not listen to music in one form or another. Music is what gets us through! Through what? everything! You don't have to think about how you're going to be on restriction until cows jump over the moon when your parents see your report card. You can just vegitate!

What music you chose to vegitate with can in some cases reflect your mood. Say you put on Jimmy Hendrix; you might be extremely confused. If you put in Whitney Houston you might have just broken up with your boyfriend and have decided to get all of your crying over with. Now, if you were to pop Black Sabbath into the ol' tape deck you might he very upset. All in all, music is crucial!

Some people's motto is "Work before play", other people, like Ricky Lewis have music as their number one priority.

The License

"Twenty days until I'm 16!" This phrase marks the countdown to the trip to the D.M.V. and the obtainment of a license. The momentous occasion usually climaxes during your sophomore year, with Mom and Dad's keys and a night out on the town. Getting a license for the lucky few means a new car! No more bus rides to school . . . in a word, freedom! Arranging rides to games, dates, movies, etc., becomes much easier when parents are out of the way; social life blossoms. The excitement doesn't always last very long. Parents begin to assume that a new driver means someone to run errands and cart little brother wherever he has to go. Friends, or people who all of a sudden became friendly, assume that the person with the car would love to cart everyone around Friday and Saturday night.

Getting a license starts off with a "bang" but usually ends with "Do I have to drive?"

Friends

To laugh, to cry, to learn to understand each other. Through good times and bad times best friends are always together, sharing their first big events as juveniles and experiencing their first thrills of life together. Cruisin around together during the weekend's and maybe do a little shopping at the mall sharing life's little problems and dealing with them just like best friends would. Most of the time — inseparable and always gossiping about everything that happened during the fun filled day.

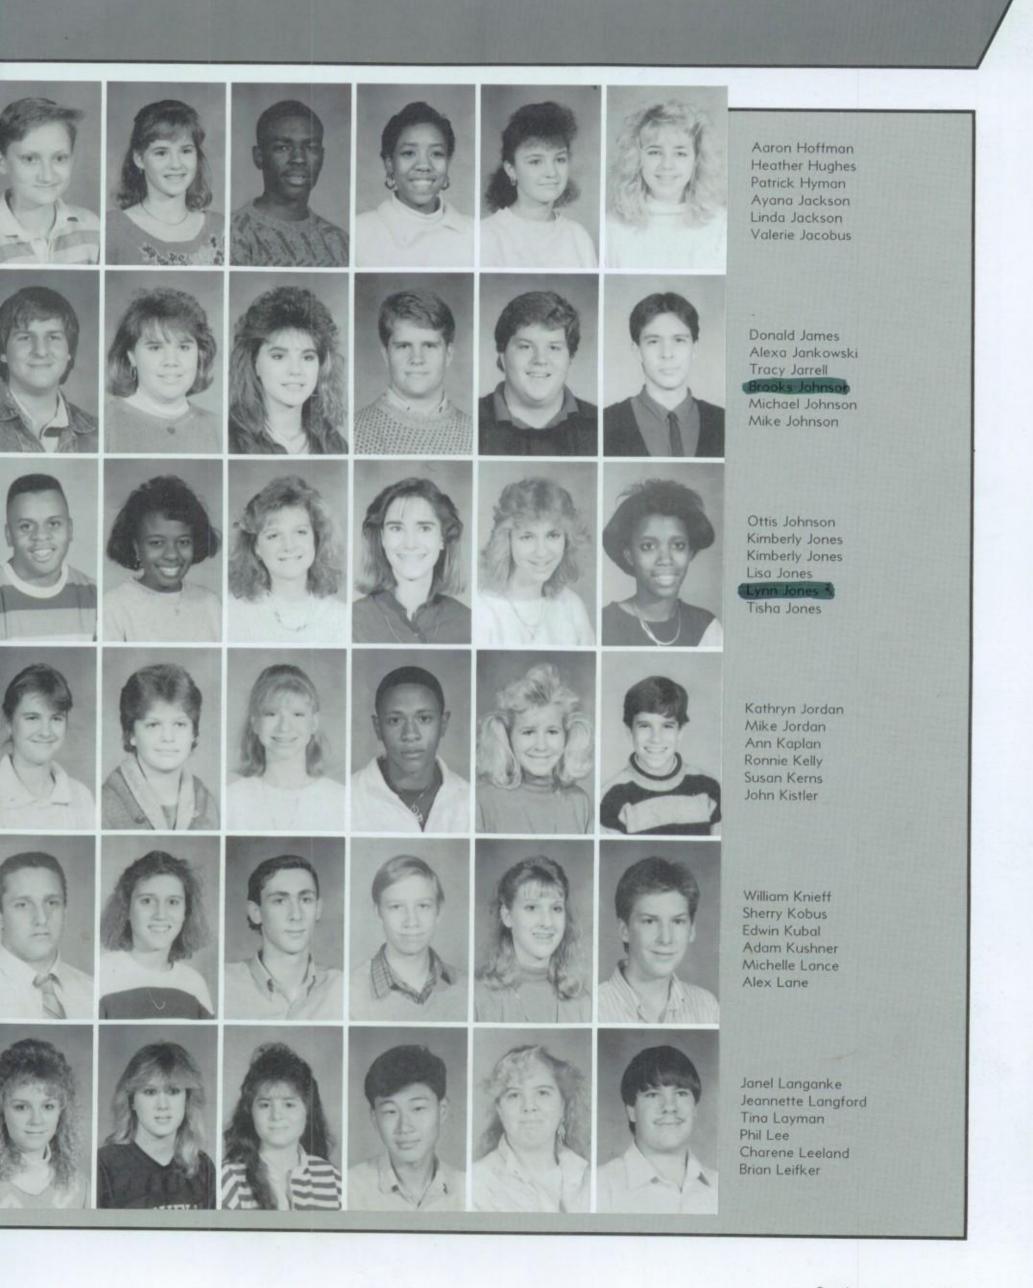

Going to sporting events and even competing in a few sports just as friends. Best friends also can talk to just their best friend, and to tell their best friends everything that makes them happy or even that makes them unhappy. A best friend is a very valuable thing to have, so when

Honorable Sophs

This was the second year that sophomores were accepted into the National Honor Society. Elsewhere in the United States, this had already been in practice, and Fairfax County was one of the last to follow suit. The general philosophy was that the underclassmen should not be inducted because their grades still fluctuated. However, recently the trend has been that a students grade habits have been firmly set by their sophomore year. Sophomore standards for admission are no different than any other: an overall 3.5 grade point average, teacher recommendations, and student written essays on leadership, character, and service. Sophomores are valuable to the Society because they will stay members for three years.

Homecoming

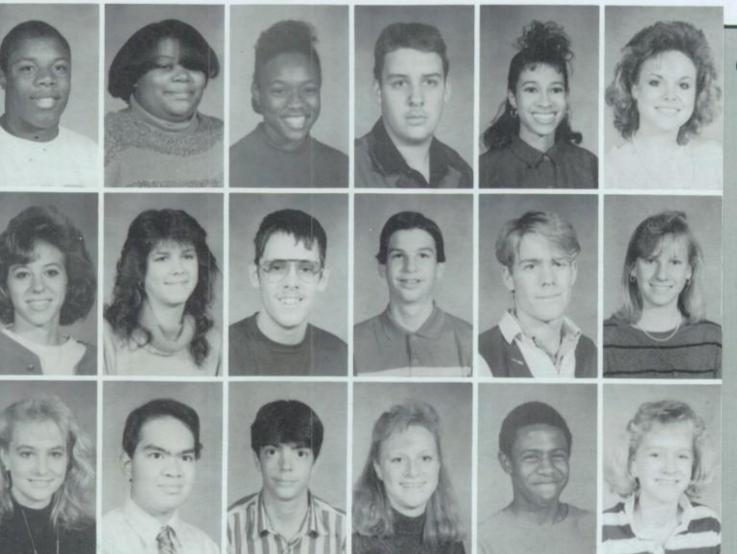

As many sophomores watched the exciting Homecoming football game and the artistic floats, different feelings were going through their minds. The coldness was probably occupying most of their thoughts, though having friends and all the fun activities around made up for most of their problems. Winning the Hall Decorating Contest

Float Time

Building a float is one of the many important traditions at Homecoming time at West Potomac. This year, the sophomore class waited until the last minute and to complete it successfully, a select few were released early from their sixth period class to put the float together. The primary reason for the sophomores slow start was getting their materials together. Mr. Shortridge, their sponsor, had a difficult time with this task. But, with a little extra time before the game, the class of '90 came out with a surprising second place award.

It took a lot of hard work to build this years float, but the Sophomores came through with flying colors.

MEASURED SUCCESS

Trying to call home, Brian Murphy demonstrates the common wish among Sophomores; a driver's license.

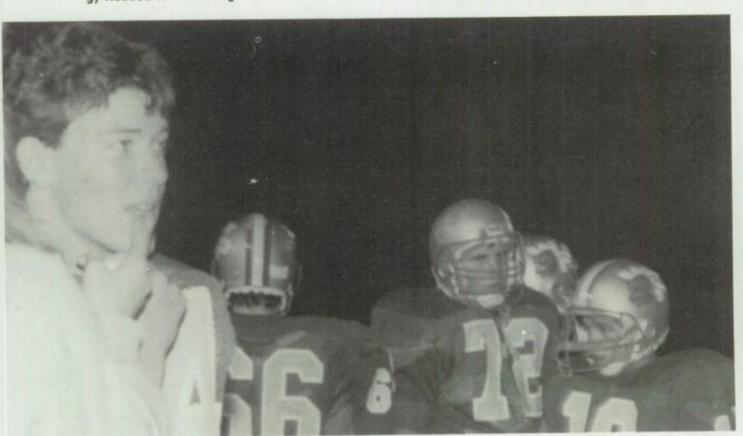

The class of 1990 at West Potomac is one that is quite unforgettable. Throughout the year, sophomores involved themselves in sports, clubs, and excelled in academics. From playing on the tennis courts, running track, field hockey, softball, baseball, golf, wrestling, and starting on the Varsity football team, among others, the sophomores seem to have adapted well to the rigors of high school life.

Although each class at West Potomac has its outstanding students in certain areas, the sophomres appear to be one of the most plentiful.

Entering high school, one might be afraid of being stuffed in a locker, egged at a football game, or having truckloads of homework to do every night. Needless to say, none of these events truly happen very often. In addition to the fear of upperclassmen and teachers, there is the enormity of the new buildings and campus. Wandering around the campus aimlessly trying to find second period gives the average Freshman the familiar feeling of hopelessness. All these anxieties are common upon entering high school, but as it has been discovered, they diminish after a while. High school, in essence, has taught one how to learn: How to learn in college, how to learn in the job market, been a place of developing one's character; knowing who real friends are and accepting faults, yet still trying to change them.

Freshmen Follies In and Out of School

Everybody is different in and out of school. When people are in school, their attitude tends to be much more serious about everything. When they're outside of school some things are taken much more lightly.

It's usually easy to get out of the serious mood people leave with after school. It's not that easy on the other hand to get into a serious mood after a great weekend.

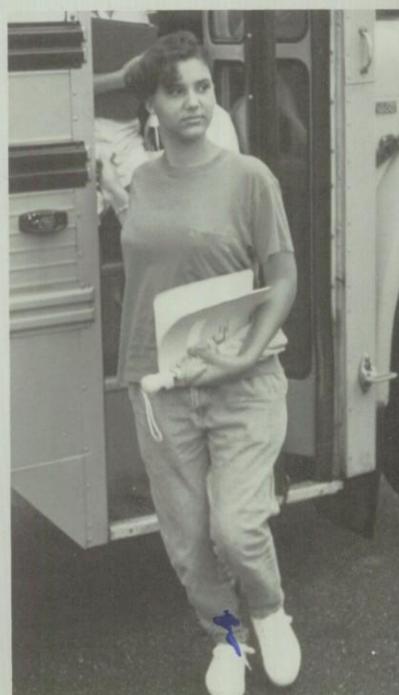

T.P.ing houses, sticking political and real estate signs on people's lawns are just a few of the antics conjoured up by freshmen left in good spirits during the weekend hours. In school decasting lockers, giving phony gifts and playing practical jokes occupy their otherwise serious school

Freshmen Fads A Must For Most

Everyone knows that there are some things that just make freshmen stand out. The latest fads or trends in the freshmen class can be very similar to the upperclassmen's, or, they can be very different.

freshmen are: guess jeans (a musthave for freshmen this year), baggy sweaters (no doubt to go over the jeans), rolled pants (they're everywhere), chucks or keds (if you don't have the right shoes you're lost), lots of necklaces, jean jackets, and mini skirts.

Of course there are certain activities that qualify as fads. There is skating, one can be classified as a "skater". Movies and parties will never go out of style. Freshmen also like to date people.

These are the things that freshmen have chosen for the main fads this year. Certainly, they will change, but how much? Think about how different you were when you were a freshmen.

Shoes are an ever popular way of displaying individualism or conformity as shown by these happy freshmen feet.

Homecoming has always been one of the highlight dances of the year. Freshmen especially have a wonderful time at this major social gathering. For one thing, it is the first real dance to start off the new school year!

Girls in long dresses and guys in suits or maybe even a tux usually go out for dinner. Some go in real style by renting a limo.

LOCKER PARAPHERNALIA: Behind Closed Doors

Starting in Junior high and all through high school, people take pride in their lockers. Some take it farther than others.

One of the latest installations is shelves. They keep things much more organized. Other people rather shove everything in it. Who said neatness counts?

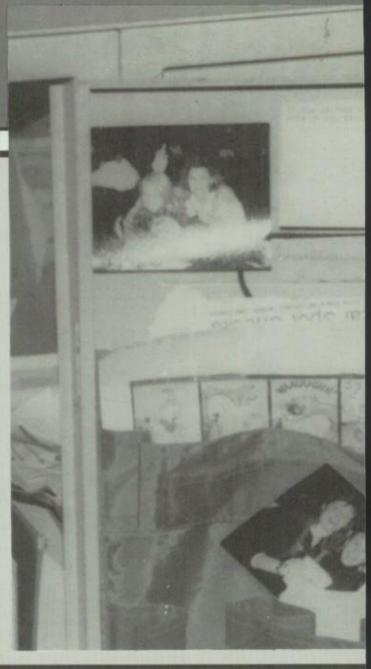

Without fail, you're bound to find pictures in everyone's lockers. They vary from best friends and loved ones to Rock Stars and models. Girls in bikinis and guys at the beach.

It's amazing the things you can find behind closed doors!

Pictures of friends, books, notes & other objects of sentimental value decorate the interiors of many lockers.

Gearing Up

Ah ... Freshmen year. For many it's the year to stop fooling around, buckle down, and study. And for others, it's just another year of regular school. Unfortunately, those "others" might realize in their junior year it was those Freshmen grades that really hurt their college transcript or employment prospects. By then, of course, its too late.

Freshmen have many decisions to make during the year, but sometimes not enough information to make them. Some of the decisions that need to be made are diploma choices (governor's or regular?) and schedule decisions. Students trying for the advanced diploma have to take a more rigorous schedule, but without previous experience, it's hard to make a choice.

Another consideration for Freshmen is what classes to take. Those with older brothers and sisters know what to expect from a class and a teacher, and make their decision based on that. Usually, though, guidance helps in class decisions. Luckily, or unluckily, depending on the persons views, part of the schedule is set for everyone because each student must fill certain requirements such as Health and P.E., and English.

Freshmen academics is not a subject to be taken lightly . . . it's a precedent for the next three years of high school.

Ched In Action

Freshmen Have Feelings Too

Freshmen have always been known to get picked on, stuffed in lockers, thrown in trash cans, and the list goes on. Of course, there is always the unannounced, freshmen initiation. This event usually takes place at one of the football games. Some of the freshmen are lucky enough to avoid what has just been mentioned.

On the other hand, some people aren't as fortunate, like the freshmen cheerleaders. They get kidnapped from their home, thrown into a car, and take a leisurely drive to Denny's for sundae's.

There is some kind of hope for freshmen, next year they get to join in on the fun of giving wrong directions, and frustrating the new freshmen. All this is just part of high school.

Busily scribbling notes, Adam Hamlin trelaxes and puts his feet up.

Sneaking a snack on the bus is hard for Mary Cunningham when everyone wants a piece.

Trying to find a tiny place of a map is tough, but Brady James and Alexia Chavez tackle it with a smile.

njoying the class discussion Demond Chesson and waine Mcclain find the subject puite amusing.

Mr. Connolly ready

for R & R

As one of the more cheerful members of the faculty, Mr. Connolly always seems to bring a smile to any student's face, on even the earliest of Monday mornings. For the first 10 years of his career, Mr. Connolly dealt with grueling grammar and crazy composition as an English teacher at Lee and Fort Hunt. As for the remaining 20 years of his career, he has explored the individual student's mind as a guidance counselor. He was "very optimistic" when he came into this profession, and is leaving just the same. Mr. Connolly is looking forward to having time to read, travel, garden and relax. He feels todays young people are open, enthusiastic and bursting with new ideas. He also adds, "I don't feel my age because I'm around all this youth!" Mr. Connolly's views on advisine students about future decisions are simple, "One shouldn't make choices, but just give options and insight." In summing up how he feels about the last 30 years Mr. Connolly admits, "I think I've had a pretty exciting life," and that attitude is precisely what has gotten him this far.

> Sitting complacently at his swarmed desk, Mr. Connoly contemplates what life is going to be like away from West Potomac.

THEN...AND NOW

What goes around comes around. Teachers today find that the fads that were once their own have come back into style. As teachers look back, they find that their schools were more strict than today, as well as more lenient. Dress codes were prevalent during the high school days of the 50's, 60's, and 70's but as soon as administrators were not looking hem lines went up and hair was let down. Schoo s were not always that strict. Mrs. Mob ey remembers that her high school was more open, classes were conducted with the iberalism growing during that time. There were required study hall periods, a upperclassmen lounge, people could eat anywhere and even go off campus. Punishment was quite different during that time. Suspension was unheard of but teachers used to compare dents in their paddles. No matter what the time period, students will always feel that they do not have enough rights and that will be the feeling forever more.

ACTIVITIES

A ctivities, in addition to the academics, are the backbone of West Potomac. The "well-rounded" student is essential to a school. A student also relates loyalty to their school through association with an activity.

Activities are more than just spirit boosters, they are often extensions of a student's personal interests. Whereas in previous years the avid political supporter had no high school outlet for their interests now they can join groups such as Young Democrats and Young Republicans. Other activities such as Band, Orchestra, V.I.C.A., D.E.C.A., C.O.E., Art Club, and Peer Counseling provide a base for future jobs. Academic clubs such as Math Team, It's Academic, and N.H.S. give students a solid footing in school preparation.

School activities provide a most important opportunity — the opportunity to meet new people, students with similar interests and aspirations. It is through these activities that lasting friendships are formed.

Listen Carefully

This year West Potomac tried something new. They recruited four announcers per month to try their luck at reporting the day's news. First, the seniors took a crack at it, running down the line until, finally, the freshmen had a chance. The first cycle ended in January and after that, the whole ting started all over again. Qualities that are needed for this task are a clear voice, enthusiasm, good enunciation, a knowledge of names, and, of course — courage. A lot of people don't have the knack and are just plain scared to stand up and speak to the entire school, even if it is from behind a microphone. All in all, the seniors seemed to fare the best, having just enough spirit and brevity without being boring. This change in the system is one of many used to try to get the students to listen to the announcements.

The Dilema

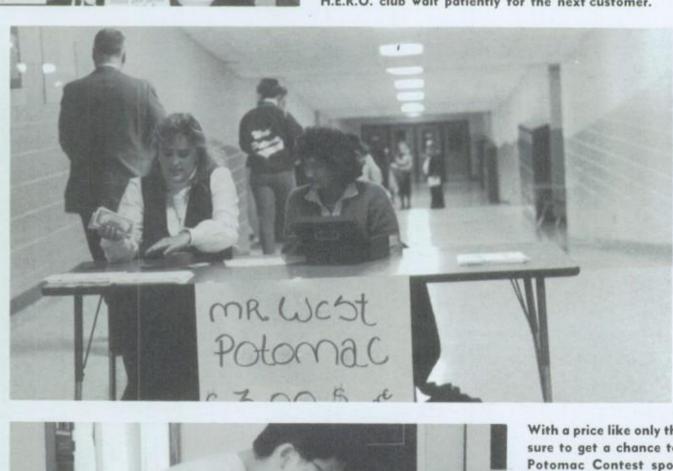

words, how do clubs decide what activities to do? The answer to that question really depends on which club is questionned. Many clubs bake sales and car washes, but the way they spend this money differs. The French Honor Society uses this money to help pay for the members' Advanced Placement exams, while the junior class spends their money on prom.

Many clubs are involved in

"What to do?" or in other non-profit activities as well. A good example of this is the Key Club's blood drive. Other activities include holiday caroling at the hospital, and trips to nursing homes. Many have fundraisers such as clubs, such as the English Team, Thespians, Math Team, Latin Club and many more, are involved in competitions.

> The nature of the activity often depends on the club, but the outcome is usually the same.

Beyond the classroom

Trying to complete an assignment for chorus class, Angela Dinwitty and create their own lyrics to a page of notes.

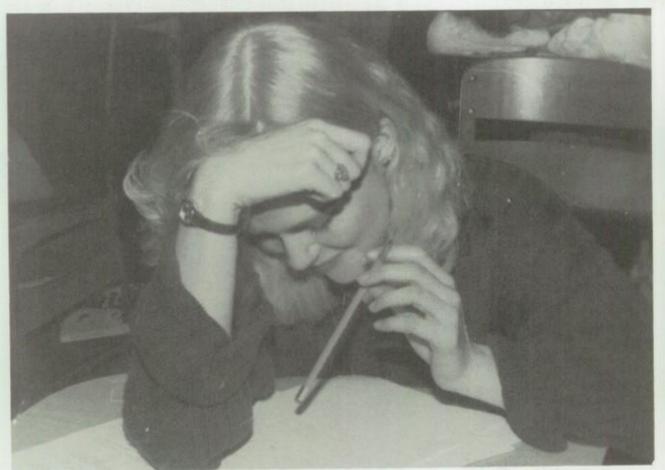

Why do teachers choose to sponsor activity groups? Well, teachers who sponsor groups are very dedicated to their students and their profession; they like to get involved. Although the teachers are just volunteers and are therefore unpaid, they do it mainly out of their good will. Another reason for teacher's sponsorship is their qualifications to supervise: most teachers sponsor clubs in which they are teaching, for example, Mrs. Pierce, a busy math teacher, also manages helping the math team with it's time consuming schedule. Mrs. Renner, while busy in the business department, also is a sponser of the Keyettes, and without French teacher Mr. Ahern there would be no French Honor Society, as outstanding as it is now. If it weren't for sponsers like these who dedicate their time to our groups they wouldn't remain at the level of excellence they have and school life would be less enjoyable.

Trips

Field trips consist of learning more about a specific subject being studied in a certain class. They help students get a better understanding by actually being there and seeing it with their own eyes. In other words, field trips can be a very fun way to learn more of something that otherwise may be dull. There is only one problem with the field trips — there aren't enough.

Most students, on the average, have been on one to two field trips a year. Of course, it all depends on the classes taken and the teachers who teach them. Some teachers don't feel it necessary to be encumbered with the responsibility of unruly students. Most students don't want to sit through tedious classes and the thought of field trips boost the teachers image and class image. Trips open the students' mind for learning and expand their knowledge.

Field trips are still an essential part of the Forensics Club, and most enjoyable, shown by Mary Rose Kubal, Dianne Newman, and Susan Brown. Intense thought is what it takes to create works of art as Ed Strozier demonstrates his artistic ability for the Art Club.

This year the Key club changed. Due to a lawsuit of the Kiwanis club (sponsor of the Keys) by a woman who wanted to be a member, the Key club's gone coed. This sudden change is controversial, due to the existence of Kevettes. The two clubs tried to merge this year, but so far have had no luck. The Key club members have involved themselves in many service activities, including various fund raisers. Among these were a dinner at Christmas time for the homeless and the organization of the special Olympics. The sponsor of the club is Mr. Shortridge, and with the combined efforts of him and Pres. Charlie Conconi, it was a meaningful, funfilled year. Vice President Rich Cohen feels that "due to the complications of the merger of service clubs, not as much as previous years was accomplished. But I hope that in future years, the two will band together and bring hope to many unfortunate people." All in all the Key club is an organization for people. Key club helps fulfill those people's needs.

In addition, the club went to New York overnight, reenacted the death of Caesar for the Ides of March, went on a camping trip, and ended the year with the popula Busch Gardens trip.

Examples

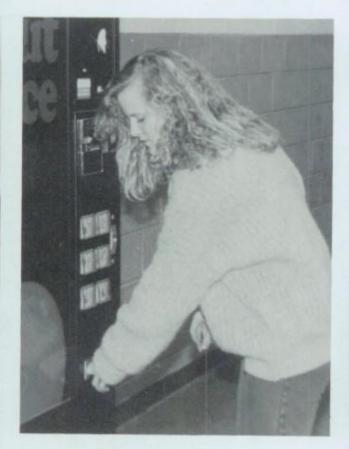

Practice is what it takes to beat the opponent, and that is what Stephen Arner did throughout the year to gain the District Debate title.

Leadership should exert a wholesome influence on the school and community. Each member of the National Honor Society is honored for his or her scholarship, character, service, and leadership. In taking initiative in class and school activities, the real leader strives to train and aid others to attain a positive objective. A leader is willing and ready to yield his or her personal interests for the interests of others. A leader has self-confidence and will go forward when others hesitate.

The most familiar form of leadership we see is that of these people. These attributes are characteristic of a leader in all forms. Some lead through offices, such as club or youth group, and others lead by example. This is the most important way in which some express their leadership quality; for not everyone can be an officer.

One of the most effective examples of leadership by example is our Honor Society. This year the Honor Society has decided to use its influence by having all of its members sign SADD pledge cards against drinking and driving. They hoped to set an example for others to do the same.

They Write Right

Remember all the club announcements at the beginning of the year? Of course, but how about those interesting ones by the English team? The English team, sponsored by Ms. Cochran and Mrs. Reynolds, is indeed a team of students who like English and join together to prepare as a team in order to win competitions against other schools in the county and state, during the school year. At the first few meetings, the team sorted out thousands upon thousands of papers ranging from American authors to antonyms, synonyms, and word roots. Often enough, the practice sessions would turn into conversations of how English teachers through the years have given them similar work. Surely a team with accuracy and attentiveness such as theirs should not meet defeat.

COUNSELING LENDS

The peer counseling program is a confidential way for students to talk to other students about their problems or just chat. The class consists of 30 selected students with Mrs. Crowell as their sponsor. In order to get chosen for the year long class, students must get two recommendations from teachers and one from their guidance counselor. These students are trained to develop good listening skills and to learn to better communicate with their peers. As a result of the class, many students say they feel more confident about themselves and are more open minded about others. The class takes place in the Home Economics Department. To find out more information or if you have a problem, talk to one of the students or Mrs. Crowell. The program is very successful and has been helpful for many.

THE ROARING PREDATOR Hard Work

After many months of hard work the yearbook staff has turned out the third edition of the Predator. A lot of time and effort is put into completing the book. The staff is made up of a variety of students, from Freshmen to Seniors. Many of them attended class either fifth or sixth period, where they worked on designing the layouts, writing articles and captions, and taking pictures. This class is taught by and sponsored by Mrs. Mobley. However, working on this dedicated yearbook staff also required a lot of time outside the classroom. This summer a group of editors attended a yearbook camp in Gettysburg where they began to work on and design this edition of the Predator. While attending this yearbook camp with students from many other staffs, the editors picked up many new ideas and techniques to improve this year's book. Besides going to camp the yearbook staff members also spend much of their spare time after school working to meet deadlines. But in the end all the hard work and dedication and commitment pays and the staff puts out another fine edition of the Predator.

THE WEST

"A congenial group of talented vocal musicians" aptly describes the new singing ensemble, Singers West. The new director, Mr. Turk has made the group a well known and active group. He has brought life to the group by giving them the new name, Singers West, and nicknames to all the members. Sometimes the students wear sweatshirts with Singers West printed on them. On the front and on the back, they have names such as Barbie, Pappy, Pokey, Twiggy, and Sarge.

Singers West has many great performers this year. They sang at the White House for the volunteer Christmas party where Nancy Reagan gave a speech and was presented with a 17,000 dollar check for the Drug Foundation. During the Christmas season, Singers West sang at Gunston Hall, Lee-Fendall House, Carl Sandburg, Bryant Retired Persons, and Cedar Knoll. The Singers West has also joined with Mt. Vernon for a concert as well as with the West Potomac Orchestra for a Winter Concert. Earlier this year they were invited to perform at the Renaissance Festival that lasted for two weeks.

Singers West has made a good name for themselves and will continue to do so. These students are the best at the West.

What's News?

Promoting W.P. Today, Editor Aaron Kormblum keeps his audience captivated.

The W.P. Today is a new addition to the school this year. It is written by the students, about the students. This one sheet of information is usually distributed on Tuesdays during second period. W.P. Today tells all about the activities and sports events of the past week and for the upcoming week. You can find the scores of a game or who won what by this. This paper also has articles on current issues. It is also helpeful to many students because it tells the dates and times that a certain college representative is coming to visit. And, of course, there is the weekly comic by AKORN. Most students enjoy the W.P. Today because it keeps them well informed of what is going on around them.

Sports

of West Potomac were on this year. The Varsity Football team started off with a two and two record with losses against T.C. Williams (7-21) and Robinson (0-31). After that shut out loss to the Rams something snapped from inside the Wolverines huddle. They went on to shut out their opponents for the next five games, outscoring the district 140 to 0! Winning the Gunston district title.

Another squad that showed their superiority over their opponents was the Varsity Field Hockey team. At the end of last season it was speculated that the team would "have to rebuild". Coach Horton, instead of building a good solid foundation built a skyscraper that towered over all opposition. The final score for the entire season was twenty-seven to eleven showing why the team went all the way to state.

Another Football team that has shown a grid iron lock on their opponents is the J.V. team who, since the school's opening, has gone through three undefeated seasons not losing to one single team. With these three teams having seasons like this in the fall, it was undoubtedly the best season of them all for the school, breaking scores of records while making record scores, showing that it was a warpath that the Wolverines were on!!!!

Combined Units

The varsity football team, putting together the right balance between seniors and underclassmen, had another very successful season. The Wolverines won their second Gunston District championship — and advanced to the Regional game with a record of 8-3.

The Wolverines put together an impressive record of six consecutive shut-outs outscoring their opponents 197-0. Leading the stingy defense were speedy linebackers Jimmy Arrington and powerful James Pearson. The defense team set many records including seven shutouts on the season and the least amount of points allowed in a single season (85).

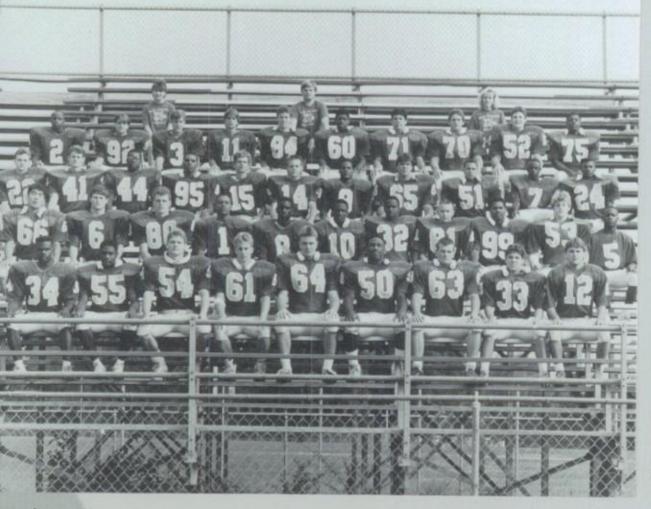

All-Regional Linebacker Jimmy Arington set the single season record for most tackling points, (245) and All District Defensive Back Ed Austin set a record of his own with six interceptions.

The offensive team, with Running Backs Reggie Ware, James Mincey, Jimmy Carter, Doug Summers, and the blocking of All-District Linemen Peter Bozzo, Greg Snell, and James Pearson set records of their own.

The unit as a whole scored the most points in a single season (267) along with most yards gained (2,817). Against Wakefield, the team continued to set records with the most points scored in one game with the largest margin of victory. (50-0).

These two powerful offense and defense units combined to defeat all four district opponents 140-0. Including a 33-0 domination over the Mount Vernon Majors.

Junior Varsity Hat Trick

The Season Itself

Starting off the 1987-88 year on the right foot, the J.V. Wolverines ran away with the Gunston district title for their third consecutive year. With the aid of coaches Jamie Meier, John Howerton, and Dale Eaton, the Wolverines crushed every opponent with ease. Going undefeated for another year, the J.V. teams began with West Springfield for their first victory. They then went on to shut down Robinson, Hayfield, Wakefield, and our primary rivals, Mount Vernon. Finally, the Wolverines went on to convincingly capture the title again Edison and Lee. It is very difficult to pinpoint the exceptional players because the entire team participated in the exciting games. Every player contributed to the sensational record and they should all be commended for their hard work and high spirits.

Freshmen Football on the Move

Football is rough, tough, and dangerous but most of all football is fun. Fun for the coaches, the players, and of course the fans. It may be fun but is also hard and dangerous. As far as high school sports go, football is one of the most dangerous. Even though our team was starting of slow but getting stronger losing their first two games to Robinson and West Springfield but winning their next game against Hammond 20-6.

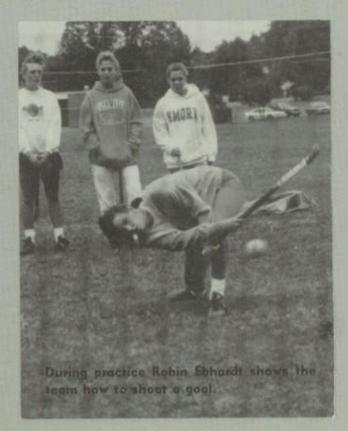

Defense was the name of the game. Dajuawn Whorley scored two touchdowns, showing that the offense was also terrific. Quarterback Matt Lambert also passed a thirtyyard completion to Chris Everett for six more points. Frannzo Williams then ran a two point conversion giving the high school rookies twenty points for the final score 20-6.

Later cornerback Arne Soliman said that he felt "The offensive held their defenseback while the defense was at their best." This was an allaround good game for West Potomac's freshman team showing that teamwork is great factor in winning a game and that they are a major threat to the Gunston District title.

By the end of the season they had improved their record from 1-2 to 4-3-1 and claim the title.

All But One Game

W.P.'s Shininig Stars

This year was supposed to be the year that the Varsity Field Hockey Team was supposed to suffer. Well, somebody forgot to tell the team this because they went all the way to the State Finals against Kempsville.

If this is Coach Horton's idea of suffering, then she is most likely the best field hockey coach in the state. The team started off the season with a victory against T.C. Williams 1-0, Edison 5-0, and a loss to McLean 0-1. No big deal, because Carol Horton then led the girls to a five game winning streak. In the regional play-offs, the team beat Fairfax 1-0, and defeated Woodson 3-2. In addition, there was a 2-1 victory over South Lakes.

The state play-offs finally arrived and victory was impending. For the Seniors, it would be a last shot at such a glory. Midlothian was defeated in a 1-0 shut-out, but, in the final game, the girls went into overtime and lost 2-1. Once again West Potomac emerged as the state's runner-ups. Keep it up "Horty", and that State Championship will be ours yet.

Team Mirrors Varsity Success

"Rising Stars" is a perfect name for the Junior Varsity Field Hockey team. Even with a number one J.V. goalie coach knew that she had her work cut out for her considering the fact that she retired 13 players to the Varsity Squad. There were too many returning players including the goalie, Molly Wilson and Nicole Smith. These two strong players along with Mic's expert coaching, led the J.V. team to being number one in the district.

Goalie, Laura Stubbings, shows outstanding potential and had a ten game shut-out streak. Another Outstanding player, Katie Auther, showed incredible talent for being a first year player. Kate finished the year with a district record for the number of J.V. goals.

The team was led by seniors: Cammy Robinson, Lori Grant, Missy Wilson, Becky Daniels, and Jane Greenleese. Also helping the Wolverines were juniors Catherine Davey, and Koren Stucki.

The girls entered their season with a 6-2 record. With their two losses to Lee, the team went to Regionals and lost in the first rounds to Woodson. The doubles team of Robinson and Grant finished 2nd in the district.

Losing all top six players except one, the team should still do well next year in districts. They will be young and somewhat experienced since they must have been on the team for at least two years.

Running Wild

As district champs, the cross country team has everything to brag about. Although the Lady Wolverines started out the season slow, they came back extremely strong. At the Spiked Shoe Classics Invitational, at Penn State, the Girls placed ninth out of 35 teams, while the boys placed ninth out of 26 teams from all over the surrounding states. By the end of the district championship, our teams had cut a 170-point deficit between them and a birth in the state meet to a mere 58 points.

Having an undefeated record of 4-

O, this team has many great aspects. They are not only close as a team, but they are close as friends. Senior and Varsity team member Alex Early states, "We are a strong team with a lot of potential and we have worked hard for our common goal to make it to state. We all are like one big family, encouraging each other to our final destination."

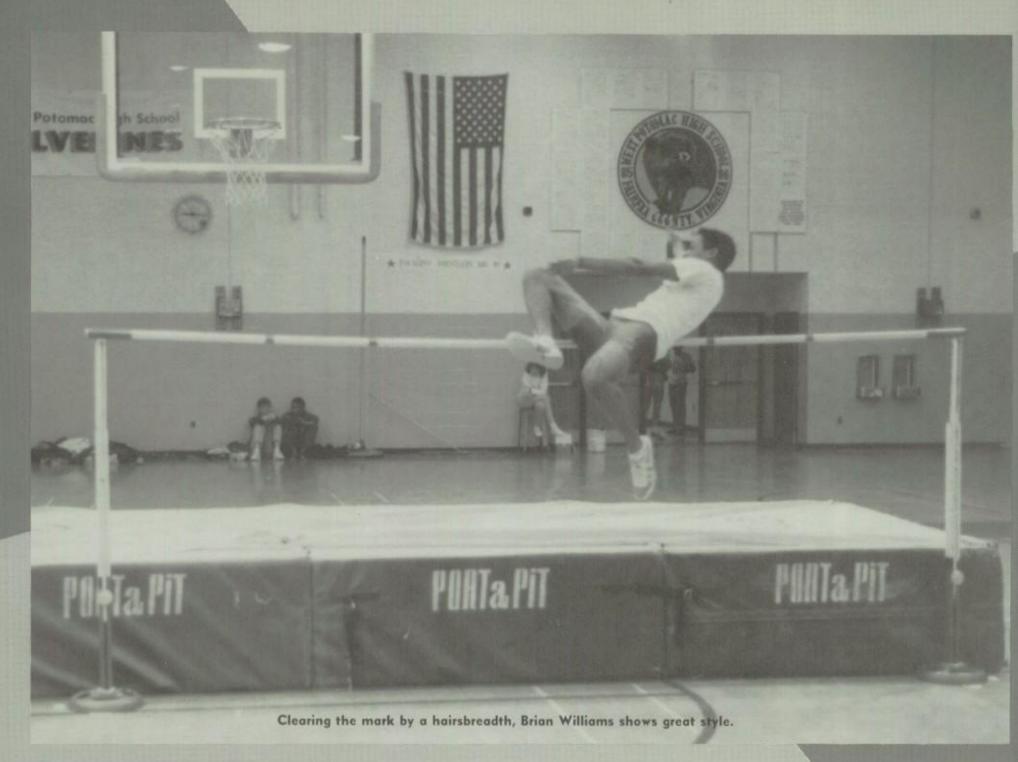

The Cross Country team has proven to everyone that they are determined and ready to "go the distance" and be the best they can.

Boys, Girls Have Successful Seasons

The West Potomac team capped off another successful campaign by winning their third straight Gunston District Indoor Championships. Both the boys and the girls squad scored in all thirteen events (a first in the schools three year history.) and never looked back.

The boys were lead by the horizontal jumping of Benard Wallace & Craig Parkinson. Wallace, a sophomore, won the district championship in the long and high jumps. Seniors Nick Mohler and James Pearson rounded out an excellent campaign for the boys in the field events, winning the Pole Vault & Shot put. Conan McDonough & Pat Moffit scored big in both the mile and two-mile events.

The girls held off a 50 point barage from Edison to muscle-out a 26 point victory. Laurie Shue, Emily Grogan, Stephanie Mitchell, Cindy Oudekerk, & Natalie Smith led a balanced attack that saw 14 Lady Wolverines score. Freshmen Chrissie Edmundson, Eve Burke, Melissa Brown, & Stacey Douglas all scored big points for the class of '91. Edmundson won herself a district championship in the 55 meter dash and Burke scored in the mile and the 2-mile. Sophomores Antoinette Bass, Rachel Callahan and Nicole Bandera also scored for the Wolverines. Bass in her first season, placed in the long jump, 55 meters and the 55 meter hurdles.

The Varsity wrestling season didn't start off all that well. Among their early problems was a new head coach, only three returning Varsity wrestlers, a lot of injuries and they started two weeks later than the rest of the teams.

There seemed to be a turnaround after Christmas though, more of the injured Wrestlers came back and everything seemed to come together for the team, they overcame Hayfield to win the district title. This year's district Champions were, Matt McCarton, Tom Ruff, Jim MacMicheal. West Potomac was the only team to advance all 13 of its players to districts.

Boys' and Girls' Records Excellent

There were no surprises this year for the boys and girls swim and dive team. Again the girls won the District title but the boys were beat out by Mt. Vernon. Though the boys broke two districts records this year, the 400 relay and the back 100, the boys still couldn't get the edge over Mt. Vernon for the title. The boys were led by captain Ken Shwartz and Robby McGucken, with a great help from Nick Weis, Jason Gritzner, Pete

Messmon, Rob Lancaster, and Colin Crowther.

The girls had no competition for their third title with great swimming by Laura Rawlings, Sherry Hobes, and Koren Stucki and Elizabeth Utter.

A great coaching job by Nancy Carter, new this year to the team. She gave them great confidence to the team, making the team more unusally pysched then they regularly had been.

Springing Into Action

The West Potomac gymnastics team ended the season with a 2-2 record finishing third in the district after defeating the Mt. Vernon Majors and defeating the Hayfield Hawks by way of forfeit. But losing to the Edison Eagles and the Lee Lancers.

Varsity Cheers Teams To Victory

A Winning Attitude "Comitted to Excellence"

"Blue-Silver-White" is a common phrase you'll hear at Varsity games chanted by 18 girls (11 juniors and 7 seniors) on the Varsity squad. They show us that cheerleading has changed since the days of jumping around and looking cute (although you have to admit they make it look pretty fun.) The Varsity Squad also shows us that cheerleading really is a sport and it takes a lot of hard work and dedication, not to mention a tremendous amount of skill. Their hard work paid off this summer at camp.

They won superior Blue Ribbon all four days, placing the top 5 out 75 squads, and were voted most spirited by their competitors. Also, 2 of our Varsity Cheerleaders Trina Fairley and Crystal Simpkins went on to represent our school in the All-American Cheerleading Competition. But the West Potomac Varsity Cheerleaders aren't just any other squad, but a squad which represents "our" school no matter where they go. They prove that WePo really is "Committed to Excellence"!

Building enthusiasm between quarters, Nicole Battaglia, Trisha Jefferson, and Jenni Pye demonstrate their pride.

Fresh Spirit at W.P.

Cheerleaders Show Enthusiasm

Once again the J.V. squad started out the season with a great accomplishment over the summer. They brought back all first place ribbons from the competition at camp, headed by the NCA with the help of the varsity squad they also received the NCA spirit stick. Headed by Mrs. Porter they were backed with spirit and encouragement. They began the Football season ready to cheer and they never quit. They also were seen at the basketball games along with the wrestling matches cheering both on to the districts. The squad will rest during the spring and then prepare for another great year.

The Freshmen Cheerleading squad this year was full of spirit. The freshmen showed a lot of promise. As their ability developed during the next few years, "surely the school will have a strong group of cheerleaders" said Ms. Casey assistant coach to the cheerleaders.

The J.V. cheerleaders show off their talent to the spectators during half-time.

SELF EXPRESSION

Singular Sports

Even out of school, most West Potomac students are involved in many sports. A lot of these sports can only be enjoyed in certain seasons, such as water skiing, biking, & skating in the summer, and snowskiing and ice skating in the winter. A lot of these sports are family-oriented considering some of the sporting locations are far away and that the whole family enjoys them. For some, these other sports may even become a profession. One can spend a much as 40 hours a week practicing for competitions or even the Winter/Summer Olympics. All in all, these "other Sports" are a great way to relax and have fun, whether it be with family or friends.

During the winter season Cindy Niemeier loads the van for a greatly anticipated skiing trip.

Gliding across the water, Erik Doebereiner cuts across the lake.

Going off the skateboarding jump, Charles Copeland performs a "star air".

After school Jamie Buttery practices the biking technique known as a cowboy.

It was a year in which everyone had a vision of what they wanted to accomplish, and everyone's vision was different. Some wanted better grades, some joined this club or that one, and some wanted a date with the guy/girl whose locker happened to be nearby. New students sought new friendships, seniors sought college acceptances or career opportunities, and freshmen sought to involve themselves for the first time in a broad range of activities. Athletes set championships as their goal, and many met the challenge. Clubs also sought to excell in competitions involving their own special interests.

Teachers pursued an often elusive goal - planting a new idea in the mind of another person, while administrators tried to bring order to the chaotic whirl of pursuits. Through it all, everyone searched for good times to enjoy along the way.

Academically, extracurricularly, and socially we spent a year together in hot pursuit of our goals. Some were reached, some were not. All helped us to grow in our understanding of the complicated concept we call life. If our pursuits did that for us, then we accomplished something. And not a small something at that.

Feeling accomplished after a hard day's practice, crew member Alex Davis prepares to go home.

Team spirit abounds with Jenny Callahan and Erin McDonough as they revel in their victory.
